Idle Miners Not Worried By Injunction

Lewis And Operators To Meet Wednesday

PITTSBURGH — (AP) — Mine whistles shrilled in vain again today as striking soft coal miners for the second straight day defied work orders from both the government and John L. Lewis.

The no contract no work walkout continued full force in all major coal producing states. Hundreds of pickets roamed Pennsylvania highways to make sure all pits are closed.

Pennsylvania state police reported two men wounded with buckshot in the Latrobe area. It was not determined if they were miners or pickets.

Walt And See

The West Virginia Coal association said some idle miners in the United Mine Workers District 17 stated they have not received "any orders to return to work," adding that the men "are waiting instructions from their union leaders to return to work."

The strikers did not seem much concerned with President Truman's Taft-Hartley court action aimed at ending the strike, nor with Lewis's work orders.

The questions now is what Uncle Sam will do about enforcing his stop-strike command.

The government is standing by with a wait-and-see attitude.

One producer, who asked not to be identified by name, expressed the opinion that striking diggers might return to work if Lewis sends direct work orders to all UMW locals. His telegraphed order Saturday went only to union district officials.

There was talk yesterday that the nation's 372,000 idle United Mine Workers might be staying home to celebrate Lewis' 70th birthday. It is not a legal holiday in the bituminous fields.

No Contract, No Work

Today is also a holiday—Valentine's Day. However, it appears more likely the miners are backing up their "No contract no work" tradition.

One West Virginia digger, asked if the men were observing the UMW leaders birthday, promptly declared:

"Yes, and the miners probably will be celebrating John L. Lewis' birthday for two more weeks."

The miners did not seem much concerned with President Truman's Taft-Hartley court injunction. Nor with Lewis' telegraphed instructions to UMW district leaders to get the men back to the mines.

A Russelton, Pa., miner summed up sentiment thus:

"The injunction won't mine coal

No Early Agreement Indicated In Peace Dickers At Chrysler

DETROIT—(AP)—Without promise of an early agreement, Chrysler and the striking CIO United Auto Workers kept up peace talks today.

Now in its 21st day, the strike has idled between 130,000 and 140,000 men in auto plants and allied industries.

The strike began in a fight over $100 monthly pensions. Since, the union has demanded the negotiation of an entire new contract.

Chrysler offered a $100 pension, including social security, at age 65. The union rejected this for lack of a funding plan and a union voice in administration.

As an alternative, the UAW proposed a 10 cents an hour package either as a pension or as a wage increase.

Governor Recommends Business Profits Tax

Diplomats Weigh Needs Of Asia To Fight Communism

BANGKOK, Thailand (Siam)—(AP)—American Far East diplomats today reportedly weighed southeast Asia's needs for U. S economic aid to combat the spread of Communism.

None of the 20 diplomats attending the conference here commented directly. But some hinted President Truman's program for aid to under-developed areas and some form of Marshall Plan for aid were expected to be considered in the last two days of the meeting.

Ambassador at large Philip C. Jessop, presiding, did not bring a state department plan from Washington. He is soliciting information from the diplomats that may be used by Washington to weld a concrete program.

While the diplomats worked in the torrid American Embassy, U. S. business men about Bangkok said they thought it too late to save Indo-China from Communism. They predicted the country would be Red within 10 months to two years with Moscow-trained Ho Chi-minh, present head of the Vietnam Satate in the north, taking over.

Ho has been fighting the French for more than three years.

Britain and the United States have recognized the newly created Vietnam government of Bao Dai playboy puppet emperor under the Japanese. Bao Dai's government is pro-French.

War Prisoners Receive Checks

Maryland Man First With $1,198.

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Frank H. Bigelow, of Rockville, Md., was handed a check this morning for $1,198, one dollar for each of the 1,198 days he spent in Jap prison camps.

The two war commission commissioners, Daniel F. Cleary and Mrs. Georgia Lusk, gave Bigelow the check, the first POW subsistence payment made under the war claims act. He is a Navy veteran who was captured on Corregidor.

About 250 other ex-POW's will get their checks this week, too. Thereafter, payments will leave Washington at a 50-a-day clip. The money is supposed to come from seized enemy assets. So far the fund could pay only about one sixth the claims.

The commission had a tough time selecting Bigelow as winner of the first check. Four other POW's who live near Washington and who had sent their applications in before Bigelow, led him on the list. But—they couldn't be located.

Altogether, the commission expects to pay out $108,000,000 to POW's and their survivors. The commission has on hand about 75,000 claims. New ones are coming in at the rate of 1,200 a day.

Houghton Girl, 16, Cherry Pie Queen

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—(AP)—Michigan's new cherry pie queen in Florence Rompainnen, 16-year-old blond Houghton county farm girl.

The first Upper Peninsula representative to win the state cherry pie-baking championship took the title in final judging among 42 contestants, most of them winners of county eliminations.

The contest is sponsored by the state's cherry growers and canners.

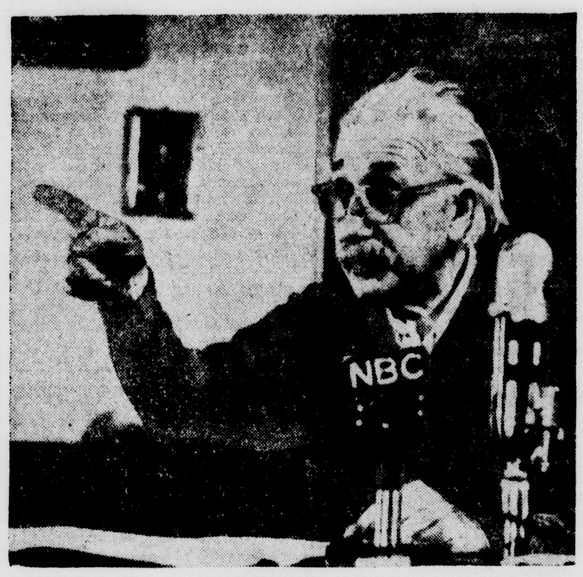

As the Michigan winner, Miss Rompainnen will compete for the national championship in Chicago Feb. 21.

Big Bomber Ditched With 16 Men Aboard Off British Columbia

SEATTLE—(AP)—An authoritative source whose identify cannot be divulged said today that a B-36 bomber has been forced down in Queen Charlotte sound with 16 men aboard, 400 miles northwest of here.

The informant said there is no doubt that the plane "ditched" in the icy waters off the British Columbia coast after encountering severe icing conditions and fire in one engine while on a trip from Eielson air force base, near Fairbanks, Alaska.

Officials at McChord air force base have refused to discuss the matter and a veil of secrecy has been wrapped around the matter.

Ice Storms Cut Off Downstate Cities; Loss Mounts Hourly

(By The Associated Press)

Ice storms cut all telephone communications to 32 Michigan towns today and two deaths were caused by weather in the last 24 hours.

Damage mounted [illegible]

Everywhere it was either raining, sleeting or snowing, and U.S. weather experts expected little change before nightfall.

Hundreds of telephone lines, in both Southern Michigan and the Thumb region, went down under ice burdens, falling limbs or toppling trees today.

A blizzard raged over the Straits of Mackinac, where the car ferry Sainte Marie became fast in the ice this morning while enroute from St. Ignace City with 35 passengers and 15 automobiles aboard.

The state highway department said the ferry was in no immediate danger and the coast guard's ice breaker Mackinaw was standing by to free the vessel when the weather clears.

The railroad car ferry Chief Wawatam, which also stuck in the Straits ice this morning, freed itself and returned safely to port.

Elsewhere in the state transportation schedules were badly disrupted.

Buses were running behind schedule or not at all. Airplanes were grounded generally. Many schools were closed, and many homes depending upon electricity to operate oil furnaces were cold because of power line breaks.

Thousands of three limbs snapped under ice, and in many areas whole trees toppled onto houses or into the streets, carrying telephone and power lines with them.

In Detroit a snow-laden garage door crashed down on 7-year-old Robert Duncan, Jr., killing him.

In Grand Rapids a car fatally injured Mrs. Bina R. Whaley, 60, as she crossed a street in a snow storm.

Over most of Central and Southern Michigan, which was blanketed by five to eight inches of snow yesterday (Monday) sleet or icing rains pelted today. Snow fell over much of the Upper Peninsula.

The sleety rain was expected to turn to straight rain in the afternoon's rising temperatures, giving way to snow flurries at night downstate.

Silver Shirter Out On Parole

Freedom To Be Brief For William Pelley

TERRE HAUTE, Ind. — (AP) — William Dudley Pelley, former Silver Shirt leader, was to be released on parole today from the federal penitentiary here after serving nearly eight and a half years of a 15-year term for wartime sedition.

But freedom for the 59-year-old organizer of the alleged secret political and military organization will be brief—temporarily at least. He was to be met at the prison by Sheriff John Trierweiler of Vigo county (Terre Haute) and two deputy sheriffs from Buncombe county, North Carolina.

The deputy sheriffs were sent from Ashville, N. C., by Solicitor W. K. McLean. North Carolina authorities want Pelley to serve a two-to-three-year term for violation of a suspended sentence.

Pelley was sentenced on Aug. 12, 1942, in federal district court at Indianapolis. He was charged with sedition in connection with the publication of a magazine, "The Gallilean,' at Noblesville, Ind.

The government accused Pelley of attempting to incite mutiny in the United States armed forces and obstruct recruiting by spreading false propaganda to the effect that this country had no defense, was doomed to defeat, was bankrupt and led by prejudiced and incompetent men. The allegations allegedly were published in Pelley's magazine.

The former Silver Shirts chief, who wore a silver-haired goatee at the time of his sentence, has been eligible for parole since Aug. 11, 1947. The federal parole board announced his parole last week.

MIDNIGHT CLOSING ENDS

MARQUETTE, Mich. — (AP) — Beginning tonight, Marquette taverns and bars will be permitted to remain open until 1 a. m., one hour later than usual. Several years ago, because of shortages and critical power conditions, liquor establishment proprietors voluntarily affected a midnight closing.

Newspapers Expose Organized Crime In 14 Major Cities

CHICAGO — (AP) — The operations of organized crime in the United States and the leaders in the various rackets are the subject of articles by newspapers in many of the nation's major cities.

Newspapers in 14 cities yesterday published their first articles following a three-day meeting here last week by their crime reporters who exchanged information.

The stories appeared as federal and local crime law enforcement agents from across the country planned a crime conference in Washington. The meeting today follows the annual closed-door session of the nation's federal district attorneys.

Other newspapers which did not take part in the conference currently are developing and printing searching articles and series on the country's organized crime.

One series is being published by the Hearst Newspapers. The Chicago Sun-Times is printing a series based upon investigation by five of its staff members.

State Revenue Running Short By 90 Million

Williams Pushes Big Building Program

LANSING—(AP)—Governor Williams today recommended that the legislature spend $27,928,500 for state buildings and enact a corporation profits tax to bridge an expected $90,000,000 gap between expenditures and revenues in the 1950-51 fiscal year.

The recommendation for a building program brings to $321,-900,000 the governor's recommendations for appropriations from the general fund. This is $43,800,000 more than the $278,-100,000 appropriated from the fund for the current fiscal year by the legislature last spring.

The governor will attempt to "sell" this budget to the legislature's appropriating committees when they meet with him today to open a series of meetings preceding the March 15 special legislative session.

Rate Not Decided

Williams said he would recommend a rate for his proposed corporation tax later. His proposal to assess the tax at four per cent was turned down by the legislature last year.

Earlier the governor had recommended that $135,700,000 be appropriated from the general fund for operating expenses of state agencies. This compared with $131,000,000 for the purpose last spring.

The governor also previously estimated the amount required by law to be appropriated for the benefit of local units at $158,300,-000, compared with 133,100,000 appropriated last spring.

In a prepared statement, the governor said that of the nearly $28,000,000 recommended for for buildings about $9,500,000 is for completion of projects which the legislature authorized last spring.

Abuses Found In GI Schools

House Checks On Veterans' Training

By BARNEY LIVINGSTONE

WASHINGTON — (AP) — House members looked today for ways to curb abuses in the GI vocational training program without depriving veterans of the chance to gain useful training.

But the big question in the minds of lawmakers was how far congress should go in check-reining the educational rights guaranteed veterans under the servicemen's readjustment act (the GI Bill).

Rep. Wheeler (D-Ga) summed it up this way:

"The basic question is simply this: is the GI bill a readjustment act or a bonus act?"

Rep. Teague (D-Texas), like Wheeler a member of the House Veterans committee, said he was concerned that congress would go too far.

"What we're afraid of is that the Veterans Administration will put back into effect regulations it once had and which endangered the entitlement of veterans to their four educational opportunities guaranteed by law," he told a reporter.

Prodded yesterday by President Truman to tighten up the law on "blind alley" vocational training, the house is expected to consider some form of curbs within a week or two.

Differences of opinion over their extent, however, were likely to start a hot dispute.

Mormon Missionaries Arrested By Czechs

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia —(AP) —The Czech foreign office announced today police have arrested two American Mormon missionaries on charges "of having attempted to enter a prohibited area."

The announcement was made in a note to the U. S. embassy replying to an American request for information as to the whereabouts of the missionaries. The two disappeared Jan. 28.

Fair Deal Hokum Gets Lambasting At GOP Dinners

(By The Associated Press)

Republican party high brass last night lambasted President Truman's "Fair Deal" program in a series of Michigan Lincoln Day talks.

The speakers included Senators Saltonstall of Massachusetts, Martin of Pennsylvania and Mundt of South Dakota.

They lashed out particularly at "deficit financing" and "regimmentation," and also warned of a spread of Communism.

And in between were words of praise for the bi-partisan foreign policy and the Marshall Plan.

Sen. Martin, speaking before the Oakland County Lincoln Republican Club, labelled the president's program "dangerous, dishonest and immoral."

"It must result," he declared, "in national bankruptcy and the slavery of the Socialist state."

"We must defend our country," he continued, "from the destructive blight that is corrupting American morality with its false promise of something for nothing.

"We must resist the ever increasing centralization of governmental power and authority at Washington by insiduous grants of so-called aid to states.

"We must awaken the American people to the dangers of deficit financing and a continued policy of taxing and spending that means bigger debt and more oppressive taxes year after year."

Lilienthal Leaves; Truman Seeks New Atomic Energy Boss

By JACK BELL

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The White House said today that President Truman will designate Sumner T. Pike as acting chairman of the atomic energy commission pending appointment of a successor to David E. Lilienthal.

D. Lilienthal

There was no indication when Lilienthal's successor would be chosen. Lilienthal leaves office tomorrow.

Pike, a Republican and vice chairman of the commission, will start serving Thursday as acting chairman.

Pike is one of the original members of the commission.

The White House announcement that he will be acting chairman put to rest a boom among some members of Congress for the job to go to Gordon Dean.

Lilienthal, who steps out as chairman tomorrow following his resignation, was described as originally having had grave doubts whether the United States should try to build the superbomb.

Strauss, who often opposed Lilienthal's views and got along with some of the present chairman's critics, also has announced he is quitting the commission.

When Lilienthal leaves the commission tomorrow he will end a career of government service that began in 1931 when he became a member of the Wisconsin railroad commission.

From there he went to the Tennessee Valley Authority as a director in 1933. He became chairman of the atomic energy commission when the civilian group took over the wartime Manhattan project Jan. 1, 1947.

Lilienthal's relations with a considerable part of Congress always have been somewhat strained. Chairman McKellar (D-Tenn.) of the Senate appropriations committee has been after his political scalp for years.

Damage By Sleet Heavy In Chicago

(By The Associated Press)

Rain splashed over the middle and lower Mississippi valley today, raising the threat of new floods in the area already hard hit by overflows this winter.

Heavy rainfalls were reported by the U. S. weather bureau in Arkansas, Louisiana and Mississippi. More rain also fell in parts of Indiana, Illinois and Missouri.

Chicago suffered heavy damage by the worst ice and snow storm in several years. Thousands of homes in the city and suburban areas were darkened last night as power lines snapped under the weight of ice and snow.

Finnish Parliament Explosion Is Mystery

HELSINKI, Finland—(AP)—Police said they had no explanation of an explosion early today that rocked the parliament building where a Finnish president is to elected tomorrow.

The explosion, on the staircase leading to the building's entrance, caused no serious damage inside the structure, in which 300 electors today present their credentials, prior to the presidential balloting tomorrow.

The electors are vitually certain to re-elect President Juho Passikivi, 85-year-old anti-Communist statesman. Of the 300 electors chosen in the January general election, 172 are pledged to support him.

BUDGET READ

MARQUETTE, Mich. — (AP) — The city commission last night adopted estimated expenditures of $1,466,315.35 for 1950, including $260,000 for schools and school debt service and $27,363.59 for operation of the public library.

Californian Hints Truman Intends To Run In 1952

WASHINGTON,— (AP) —A hint from a California political leader that President Truman is thinking of re-election in 1952 was welcomed by Democrats generally today—as at least likely to stir up party interest.

Politicians generally considered the hint too vague to be any real tip-off in Mr. Truman's plans. The Democrats figured that anyway, it should whet the public's appetite for the president's Jefferson-Jackson dinner speech here Thursday night.

George Luckey, vice chairman of California Democrats, visited the White House yesterday and on his exit quoted the president as saying:

"If we should have the same team next time, maybe we could do something."

He told reporters the president meant, in alluding to the same team, the people who supported the Truman ticket in 1948.

Luckey left no doubt where his interest ties. He said he told Mr. Truman he wants him to run again in 1952. "He's my boy," said Luckey.

A new Republican squabble over campaign policy was indicated meanwhile.

Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll of New Jersey was the latest to join GOP dissenters to the statement of party policies fashioned here reenctly under the principal guiding hand of Senator Taft (R-Ohio).

Driscoll told a New York audience last night that to win elections the Republican party must become "vital, liberal and progressive." He complained that the GOP statement of principles seemed to take a "defensive attitude."

The New Jersey governor has been mentioned as a possible candidate for the GOP presidential nomination in 1952.

He said the Republicans should not refuse to say yes to progressive national proposals just because they fear the "me too" label.

On the other hand, he said, they shouldn't let the Democratic administration get away with "the false, disappointing and dangerous practice of promising everything to everybody."

Mediation Halted, Getting Nowhere In Railroad Dispute

CHICAGO — (AP) — The National (Railway) Mediation Board today withdrew from efforts to mediate a dispute between the nation's railroads and two operating unions.

Francis A. O'Neill, jr., chairman of the board, announced that "in our opinion, the mediation was getting nowhere."

The unions are the Order of Railway Conductors and the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen. They recently announced that their membership, claimed to number about 250,000, voted overwhelmingly a strike authorization to their leaders.

Today's development did not, however, raise an immediate strike threat. Under requirements of the railway Labor Act, further steps to settle the dispute must be taken. Normally the procedure requires several months before a walkout can take place.

Sailors Go Ashore Admiral Style Now

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Some of Uncle Sam's seamen, second class, soon will be going ashore admiral style.

The small boat shop at the Philadelphia naval base yesterday unveiled the first of 10 plywood and aluminum launches to be used in transporting enlisted men from ship to shore.

The 40-foot cabin craft is a far cry from the spray-swept open launches now in use. The enclosed cabin has upholstered seats for 28 passengers, offering protection against the foulest weather.

Berlin Truck Traffic Slowdown Ends Again

BERLIN—(AP)— The Russians speeded up to normal their handling of Berlin's truck traffic today after a sudden three-hour slowdown last night.

Berlin-bound vehicles were allowed to enter the Russian zone at Helmstedt today at the rate of nine or ten an hour, considered normal for the winter.

German customs officials said they could offer no explanation for last night's Russian-imposed slowdown. It caused a backlog of 50 trucks, which cleared up early this morning.

Twisters Leave Trail Of Ruin

Four States Count Loss; 47 Dead

Ripley, Tenn., — (AP) — Four states skip-bombed by a series of small tornadoes that snatched at least 47 lives figured a mounting toll of destruction today.

The deadly twister slapped 20 small communities in Texas, Arkansas, Louisiana and Tennessee and left a million-dollar-plus hopskip trail of damage.

The latest whipped hard at Hurricane Hill near here yesterday. Nine lives were snuffed out—a family of eight and a Negro farm woman.

The erratic cone of 500-mile-per-hour winds sucked up the home of Wilson Carroll, a 34-year-old tenant farmer, threw it through a dense woodland and left the bodies of Carroll, his wife, and their six small children scattered over a wide area.

The Hurricane Hill twister also touched the home of Alice Wright, 57, wrecked it, and left her in the ruins with fatal injuries.

Two Texas towns, Laporte and Alvin, were the fist hit in the 24-hour series of storms. Nine were killed in the Lone Star state and 152 injured. State police at Austin reported damage estimated at more than $1,500,000.

The largest death toll was in Louisiana—29, according to Red Cross count. Most of the Louisiana twisters centered in towns around Shreveport Sunday.

Elephant Squirts On Lady Reporter In Atlanta, Ga. Zoo

ATLANTA—(AP)—There were no valentines today for Coca, Atlanta's ailing elephant—at least not from reporter Katherine Barnwell of the Atlanta Constitution.

Miss Barnwell was on hand yesterday as a veterinarian started to rig up a sling for Coca, another step in the lengthy treatment of her bum knee. Dr. Charles Rife said he wanted to get Coca's weight (three tons of it) off her crippled leg.

But Coca balked at the presence of the press. She suddenly squirted a trunkful of muddy water all over Miss Barnwell.

The reporter said Coca missed a Constitution photographer (not named in her story) because he "gallantly" ducked behind her.

To Replace Old Road Equipment

Delta Losing Money On Upkeep Cost

To avoid further loss in the continued operation of older pieces of equipment on which the upkeep cost is excessive and to increase efficiency, the Delta county road commission yesterday approved the start of a program of equipment replacement.

The commission, composed of Hilding Norstrom, chairman Harry Greene and Elmer Klasell approved the plan that includes establishment of an equipment replacement fund and the purchase of some new truck units.

William J. Karas, commission superintendent-engineer, advised the commission that the losses in equipment revenue because the many old units totaled $22,000 in 1948. The loss was expected to be greater in 1949, he reported.

Plan Truck Purchase

At the present time it is necessary to use and maintain two pieces of old equipment to do work that could be done by one new machine, Karas said. The county owns 17 trucks that range from 14 to 21 years of age and is losing money in their operation — a loss that in total would pay for several pieces of new equipment. He also urged that equipment rental funds be earmarked for equipment replacement, a standard procedure in many counties.

The commission authorized the engineer to:

1—Advertise for bids to furnish the commission with one heavy power grader to replace two present graders that are 19 and 20 years old.

2.—Advertise for bids to furnish the commission with one or more trucks equipped with underbody scraper and V-plow to replace old equipment.

3.— Start an equipment replacement fund.

Study Fayette Route

The commission is now paying $1,000 per month on notes for the purchase of new equipment compared to $7,000 monthly of two years ago. The proposed new purchases would bring the monthly note payments up to a total of $4,000 per month.

Karas advised the commission that last year the commission had paid up $71,000 for new equipment, and recommended that equipment purchase payments should not exceed $50,000 annually in the future under the equipment replacement plan.

The commission also met with Richard Barbeau, representing the Fairbanks township PTA, who requested improvements to the county road at the Fayette hill. The commission authorized the engineer to make a study of the problem and to report back. It has been suggested by residents of the Garden Peninsula area that the road be relocated on top the Fayette hill to avoid the hill and a sharp turn at its bottom.

Plans are being pushed to complete the Cario, Egypt, to Cape Town railroad which, if finished, will be 10,000 miles long, the longest in the world.

Champion Muskrat Skinner Loves It

By HAL BOYLE

CAMBRIDGE, Md.,— (AP) —The world's champion muskrat skinner says he's going to quit trampling the marshes.

"Man, I've handled many a muskrat in my time, and I have less now than I did when I started out 40 years ago," said Curtis Insley.

HAL BOYLE

Insley, a tall, powerful man of 53, is to the fine old American art of muskrat skinning what Joe Dimaggio is to baseball. At least he is along the tidewaters of Maryland's famed eastern shore.

It came as no surprise to him last Saturday when he won the national muskrat skinning contest at the Cambridge outdoor show against trappers from Maine to Louisiana.

"I really never have been beat fair," said Insley, "and that ain't bragging."

To win the $250 first prize Insley skinned five muskrats in one minute, 50.4 seconds. As usual one of his chief rivals was George North, an older trapper.

To skin a muskrat you first go out on the marshes and catch one with a steel trap, and to an outsider this looks like the easiest part of the whole thing.

The skinning can be done in two ways. Insley is a lap skinner, who works seated with the muskrat between his knees. North is a foot skinner. He skins with one knee on the floor and one foot on the muskrat's tail.

In either case incisions are made at the base of the animal's tail. He is then shucked inside out and separated from his pelt by a series of rapid knife slices, any one of which could take off the trapper's finger. And the pelts must be removed in marketable condition. They go into fur coats.

Ten Hours For 1,000

Insley doesn't think five muskrats are enough to show what the contestants really can do.

"I like to skin 25," he said. "That way you can get a hand in it.

"I can skin 1,000 in ten hours—and smoke a few cigarets doing it, too."

Insley has been going out to the marshes, the brackish wastelands that vegatarian muskrats love, since he was 13.

In a single 74-day season he once trapped 2,900 muskrats, or about 40 a day. He works on a share-alike basis with the owner of the marshland.

"I should have had a piece of marsh myself," he said a little wistfully. He farms and does day labor out of trapping season.

In his lifetime he has seen the pelts sell from forty cents to $4.00 or more.

"I've made as much as $1,800 in a season," he said. "But I'll be lucky if I clear $50 this year."

Good pelts now fetch about $1.25. And the skinned muskrat carcass sells for 40 to 50 cents. They are listed on the menus hereabouts as "marsh rabbits.'

"Man. they're good eating," exclaimed Insley, "good as black duck. You can fry 'em, or pot 'em —just like chicken."

Steady trapping and an increase of preying natural enemies—owls and raccoons—have cut down the muskrat population.

"So far I've only taken about 100," said Insley wryly. "I think I'll stop 'ratting after this year. Man, it is pretty hard to trample the marshes all day long."

His neighbors take this declaration with a grain of marsh salt, however. They feel sure Insley will be out there trampling as long as there is a muskrat still unskinned.

MUCC To Name 'Courier Girl'

Will Take Plaque To Washington

EAST LANSING— This week the 200 affiliates of Michigan United Conservation Clubs will begin a statewide search for a photogenic girl, 18 to 30 years old, who has made a substantial contribution to conservation education in Michigan. She will become the first "Conservation Courier" in history and, during Wildlife Restoration Week, March 19-25, she will bring a plaque of America's conservation pledge from the governor of Michigan to the president of the United States.

Each MUCC club has the privilege of submitting one candidate. Her photograph, and a story of her work for conservation education, must reach the selection committee of MUCC by midnight, March 10.

The courier will be flown from Lansing to Washington to inaugurate Conservation Education Week in Michigan's public schools. Featured during this week will be the voluntary adoption of the conservation pledge by Michigan students. This pledge was adopted for the nation by former Secretary of the Interior Krug in 1946, and was recently endorsed for statewide use in Michigan by Governor Williams and by the state conservation commission.

More than 2,300 special packets of conservation education material, containing 23,000 conservation pledge posters and outlines for a 25-point program of conservation activities for classroom use, are now being distributed by MUCC to all public schools in the state. This educational effort is being directed by Prof. Paul A. Herbert of Michigan State College, chairman of MUCC's Conservation Education Week committee. Its purpose is to teach students the importance of conserving all of Michigan's natural resources.

Get Wised Up On Income Tax

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth of 12 stories explaining who must do what and how about 1949 income tax return.)

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Be sure, in filing your 1949 income tax return, that you're getting all the deductions you're entitled to.

These deductions for personal expenses—like hospitals bills and charitable contributions — are substracted from your income before what's left of it can be taxed.

You have no problem if your income was under $5,000 and your deductible expenses were less than 10 per cent of your income.

You'd make your return on form 1040-A or the 1040 short form. Every one using either of those forms automatically is al—lowed—without claiming or itemizing—a deduction of about 10 percent.

Take Your Choice

That deduction already is taken care of in the tax table used to tell the tax of anyone using either of those two forms. But—

If your income was less than $5,000 but your deductions actually were more than 10 percent, you'll lose money by using form 1040-A or the 1040 short form. Use the 1040 long form.

No one using form 1040-A or the 1040 short form gets, or can claim, any more than the approximately 10 per cent deduction explained above.

By using the 1040 long form—if your income was under $5,000 but your deductions more than 10 per cent of it—you can claim your deductible expenses in full.

True, in such a case you'll have to itemize your deductions on the 1040 long form to prove you had them, but you can claim them in full.

If your income was $5,000 or more, you can use only the 1040 long form, where you can still choose between a "standard deduction" and claiming your actual deductions in full.

A single taxpayer in this group is allowed a standard deduction—that is, he doesn't have to itemize or prove anything—of 10 per cent of his income up to a limit of $1,000 in deductions.

He just takes that 10 per cent as rightfully due him, knocking 10 per cent off his income before applying the tax to what's left. Remember: those using the 1040 long form must figure out their own tax.

Limit For Couples

He doesn't have to itemize his deductions unless they're more than 10 percent. But then, by itemizing, he can claim them to the full extent allowed by law.

Examples: Smith's income was $5,200. He takes, without itemizing, a standard 10 per cent deduction, or $520. Brown's income was $10,000. He takes the full 10 per cent deduction allowed by law, without itemizing, or $1,000.

But what about Jones whose income was maybe $10,100 or maybe even $30,000? He still can claim, without itemizing, only 10 per cent up to a limit of $1,000, no matter how much above $10,000 his income was. So Jones' total deduction, without itemizing, even though his income was $30,000, can be no more than $1,000.

If Jones' deductions actually ran to more than 10 per cent of his income—and this is true of anyone with over—$5,000 income—he can claim them in full but then he'll have to itemize them.

It's different with a married couple whose income was $5,000 or more. If they file a joint return on the 1040 long form, even though the wife had no income, they get a standard deduction—just like the unmarried man—of 10 per cent up to a limit of $1,000, without itemizing.

But if one of them files separately or both file separately there's a limit of $500 in deductions on the return filed. Example:

Smith had $9,000 income, his wife had none, they file jointly. They get the standard 10 per cent deduction of $900, without itemizing.

But suppose this same Smith—with $9,000 income and a wife who had no income—files a return alone because his wife fails to file jointly with him.

In that case his standard deduction is only $500. The Smiths have lost on that deal. And—if he files alone and his deductions actually were more than $500, he'd have to itemize them all to prove he had them, although he could claim them all.

ENTERS BROTHERHOOD—Donald T. Dishneau, son of the Howard Dishneaus, 403 South 13th street, was professed into the congregation of the Holy Cross Brothers on February 2 at Rolling Prairie, Ind., and has been assigned to Dujarie Hall, Notre Dame, Ind. Brother Donald is a graduate of St. Joseph high school, class of 1948.

Feb. 24 Last Day For Asking Potato Acreage Allotment

MUNISING, Mich. — The Alger County PMA Committee announced that Feb. 24 is the final date for potato producers to apply for a new farm potato acreage allotment for 1950.

This means that farmers who plan to grow potatoes this year for the first time or regular potato producers who are farming land on which there has not been an established potato acreage allotment in the past, may have the opportunity to apply for a "new farm" potato allotment on or before the deadline date of February 24.

In order to be eligible for government price support protection on the 1950 potato crop, growers must plant within their assigned acreage allotment and must fulfill certain other eligibility requirements.

About $1,000,000,000, it is estimated, had been invested by the public in television receivers up to the end of 1949.

Tourist Travel 'Spotty' This Winter

HOTEL ASSOCIATION officials in California say that visitor patronage there is down 10 to 15 per cent this winter. The reasons are devalued European currencies, deferred trips in the U. S. pending repeal of the 15 per cent transportation tax, and heavy Holy Year travel to Europe. They might have added one more factor—many people haven't the money to spend that they had a year ago.

It is agreed that occupancy in downtown Los Angeles hotels has slipped 25 per cent. Authorities on Florida travel say that patronage there is down at least that much on the east coast in many cases, and that night club volume is showing an even greater decline.

Hybrid motor courts have sprung up on the Pacific coast in great profusion—a sort of cross between the elemental motor court and the luxury hotel. Personally conducted eight-day stays at any of a score of Arizona resorts for less than $100 per person, not including transportation from the east, are now available.

Overbuilding of tourist accommodations at many points may have something to do with the admitted declines. Well posted builders say it may take several years for recently completed and still-under-way construction to fill up with America's growing population and travel desires. There is evidence that purveyors of accommodations in many resorting communities have been a little over-optimistic, and that a breathing spell is in order.

Upper Peninsulans in the south and west this winter say there has been no appreciable decline in housing prices, but that meals and some other factors are getting back to a more reasonable basis. However, tourist travelers and trippers are hardly warranted in expecting much lower rates for a long time. Constantly higher taxes and the cost of doing business indicate that few operators are rolling in profits under the present dispensation. Many travelers are shopping more carefully than at any time since the war. There are few bargains in travel nowadays.

1950 Election Will Be Important One

THE Republican congressmen, C. E. Potter and A. W. Norblad, Jr., and the state senator, Colin D. Smith, who were principal speakers at the Lincoln Day dinner here Saturday night presented a common viewpoint that clearly demonstrates the difference between Republican political principles and philosophies inherent in the Democratic theories that prevail today in our national administration.

The three speakers talked about individual rights and the importance of strong character in government, the preservation of American ideals of self-reliance and free enterprise. These are not simply Republican principles. They are a part of the American tradition, a fundamental reason why the United States is the strongest nation on earth and why theA merican people possess the highest standard of living in the world.

Contrast that with the trend in which we are drifting under the leadership of the Truman administration. Our government is encouraging the citizens to sacrifice their liberties for a pot of porridge brewed by unrealistic theories. The Democratic program, as advocated by Mr. Truman and his so-called Fair Deal pals, willed to them by the late President Roosevelt and the late Harry Hopkins, is predicated upon the unsound theory that all the ills of the world, as well as the problems of the people of the United States, can be solved by centralized authority in Washington. That solution apparently is socialism, with the federal government completely regulating the farms, the industries, in fact even the medical profession upon which the people depend for the protection of their health.

The 1950 national election will be perhaps the most important in the history of this country. The results of that election in all probability will determine whether the American people will permit an acceleration of the socialistic trend in which we are headed, or whether the nation is prepared to return to the national character upon which this great nation was founded and prospered for more than a century and a half.

Stronger UN Depends On Russia

PRESIDENT TRUMAN has been asked by 150 distinguished Americans to help strengthen the United Nations so it can bring the world arms race to a halt. In a letter to the president, these citizens pointed out that 22 U. S. senators and 104 representatives favor a congressional resolution to give the UN more power.

This idea of meeting the problem of peace and war by increasing international authority has captured the imagination of many people in and out of Washington. Proposals range all the way from moderate changes in the UN to sweeping world government.

We certainly must applaud the aims of these people. Plainly they are deeply concerned tha tpeace be preserved, are they are willing to expend their own effort to that end.

But almost without exception their proposals suffer one major weakness: A stronger UN or a world government is not possible without the co-operation and support of the Soviet Union. For surely no sensible proponent of these plans believes the cause of peace would be well served by leaving Russia out of the key world organization.

Yet any realistic appraisal immediately throws grave doubt on the chances of drawing Russia into an arrangement that would mean less national power and more world authority. Experts on the UN often put it this way: If we could get the kind of agreement with Russia we need for such a plan, we could find the necessary accord to make the existing UN workable.

In other words, there's nothing so drastically wrong with the present setup that couldnt be largely cured by understanding between Russia and the other great powers. No world council, no agency for peace can be successful unless there is basic co-operation among all the powerful nations.

No one sitting in on the UN's founding at San Francisco would have pretended for a moment that the UN they were creating would work with the great powers at swords' points. It may well be that the UN could be more strongly organized. But obviously that change is a secondary step, not a primary one.

The first order of business is to find a ground for better understanding among all the big nations. Only when that is achieved will Russia—and the others, too, for that matter—be willing to yield national sovereignty to a higher world order.

They can't be compelled to do this; they must want to do it.

Like A Nice Chocolate-Coated Fish?

ROGER BABSON, well known Boston statistician, comes forward with the idea that fresh fish can be preserved indefinitely by dipping them in a heavy coating of sweep chocolate.

The proposition is being criticized as fantastic, impractical, and even stomach-churning by folks with delicate digestions. Babson has been experimenting with the idea for some time, and he says the process eliminates most of the fish taste, and that the item would make an excellent addition to school lunch programs.

The fact is, we can think of nothing more likely to set a school lunch menu back on its heels, than offering a bunch of hungry kids a lunch of a chocolate-coated mullet, or smelt, or codfish. Not that there isn't something to be said for a plate of Bay de Noquette suckers beautifully cooked and dished up with a sauce of piping hot fudge, and maybe some whipped cream. Or how about a couple of wall-eyes delicately broiled in butterscotch? The idea may have possibilities after all. And we haven't mentioned chocolate-dipped sardines, either.

It may be a great scheme, but we hardly think Mr. Babson will revolutionize the fish industry. We wonder if he isn't taking a left-handed swipe at the chocolate business.

WHISTLING PAST THE CEMETERY
(Green Bay Press-Gazette)

Many of our authorities are becoming positively garrulous in spreading news about the condition of our experiments in atomic and germ warfare.

It may be reasonably doubted whether it is necessary to employ this method in order to warn the Kremlin since the Kremlin is very well represented in this country and especially at Washington. The hope, however, is a good one. We are trying to install fear in the Soviets which is the only thing that can defer an attack.

The publicized report of our Atomic Energy Commission may have been putting it on too thick. The statement that our atomic "weapons" have been put on an assembly-line basis as though we were turning them out as we make wringers or canned fruit may reasonably be taken with a dash of salt.

In many respects Russian leaders are bovine but if we overdo the pretense of readiness for combat, we may invite instead of postpone it.

WORDS TO WATCH

Diabetes, say some of the dictionaries, should be pronounced: DY-uh-BEE'teez. Have you ever used that pronunciation? No? Well, don't let it worry you, for DY-uh-BEE'teez is a pronunciation that occurs so seldom that these inquisitive ears have never once heard it after a lifetime of listening to people speak.

The pronunciation DY-uh-BEE'tiss is the first choice of the newer and more realistic dictionaries. It is the only pronunciation listed in my forthcoming dictionary.

Caffeine is listed as a three-syllable word by most dictionaries. But the Standard American pronunciation is KAFF-een, as anyone with ears to hear with can attest. I feel sure that "KAFF-i-in" or "KAFF-i-ine" would be a stoplight of first magnitude. Better say: KAFF-een.

There is no "hose" in hosiery. The second syllable is "zhuh," thus: HOE-zhuh-ree.

Q. Should the "a" in the word tassel have the sound of "ah"?

A. No. The "a" is flat. Better say: TASS-ul.

Watch the word recognize. Not "REK-uh-nize." Sound the "g," thus: REK-ug-nize.

In Greek mythology, Terpsichore is the muse that presides over dancing. Dancers today, therefore, are often referred to as Terpsichoreans, or devotees of Terpsichore, in high-flown usage. Terpsichore is: terp-SIK-uh-ree. Terpsichorean is: TERP-sik-uh-REE'un. Devotee, by the way, is: DEV-uh-TEE.

A tarpaulin is a waterproof canvas. The frequently heard "tahr-POLE-yun" has no sanction. Better say: tahr-PAWL-in.

• • •

Q. What is the origin of the word autopsy, and how do you pronounce it?

A. Say: AW-tup-see; or, less frequently: AW-top-see.

While autopsy is used to designate the inspection by dissection of a dead body, the literal meaning of the word is neither repellant nor gruesome. Autopsy is from the Greek autoptos, "seen by oneself"; hence, the modern meaning, "personal observation or examination of a body to determine the cause of death."

Face Struggle In Indo-China

BY PETER EDSON

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—One of the greatest ironies of the postwar struggle against world communism is that it should reach its present climax in a struggle for Indo-China. It is a country slightly larger than Texas, but with a dense population of 25,000,000.

Indo-China has been a French colony since 1880. Before that it was a part of the Chinese empire. French civilization, colonization and religion have spread a thin veneer on the people. But they are of small and tough breeds, and of many fatalistic pagan creeds. They are traditional enemies of the Chinese, who subjugated them for centuries. One of the remote hopes for a somewhat bloody outcome of the present crisis is that if the Chinese Communists now start furnishing arms to subdue Indo-China, the people will turn in revolt.

French Indo-China has been divided into five states—Tonkin, Annam, Cochin-China, Cambodia and Laos. The last two are now recognized as independent kingdoms by France. The first three have been united into the Viet Nam Republic. France recognized it as independent in 1946, under the Communist leader Ho Chi Minh. Then two years later the French reversed this recognition and conferred it instead on Bao Dai, who in 1945 had abdicated as Emperor of Annam.

FRANCE TRIES TO STEM TIDE

The struggle between these two independence movements of Viet Nam is the cause of all the trouble. The French colonial army in Indo-China controls the cities and ports. In the country are the guerrilla forces of Ho Chin Minh perhaps 100,000 strong. So far, Ho's forces have not waged war in Cambodia and Laos, though if he wins the struggle for Viet Nam, that may be expected.

The cost of maintaining order and supporting Bao Dai takes perhaps half of the French military budget. France today would probably be operating on a balanced budget if it did not have to maintain this army in Viet Nam. Yet this very army is considered the bulwark that keeps the Chinese Communist armies to the north from extending their conquests down through southeast Asia to overrun Indo-China, independent Siam and possibly even British Malaya.

With France continuing to give complete support to Bao Dai, the United States and Great Britain gave prompt recognition to his Viet Nam government. And with Communist China and Russia supporting Ho Chi Minh, the battle for Asia shifts from its uncertain danger spots in Korea or Formosa to an immediate threat in Indo-China.

But the grave question is whether any military solution of this crisis is possible. Making Indo-China another Spain, where the forces of communism and anti-communism could meet, would not be final.

In trying to find a happy solution for this problem, the odds have been against the French ever since the end of the war. The French had no army which could move in to reoccupy its former colony. So the British moved in from the south and the Chinese from the north, until the French could take over under General Van Xuan.

LACK OF LEADERS CREATES TROUBLE

The French had to make an offer of greater autonomy. The first trouble was that they had trained no native leaders. Ho Chi Minh, who had been a Communist organizer for 40 years, was on the ground, and the only man the French could find to back. When they learned that they could not make an agreement with him, and when he double-crossed them, the French were in real trouble.

The French had allowed Bao Dai to renounce his throne as Emperor of Annam, as part of their attempted arrangement with Ho. Bao Dai later claimed that his abdication was made under duress. There has been speculation that he received financial considerations from Ho Chi Minh as well as from France in agreeing to retire.

Then when the French had to look around for a new leader to back in place of Ho, their only possibility was Bao Dai. Having made generous concessions to Indo-Chinese autonomy to Ho, the French had to make still greater concessions to Bao Dai, in order to make his government more attractive to the Indo-Chinese people. And here they gave away nearly everything except the right and the duty to defend Bao Dai against the guerrillas of Ho Chi Minh.

In supporting Bao Dai, however, the French are put in the unfortunate role of being the foreign imperialist, and Bao Dai is weakened somewhat by that support. Bao Dai himself is only 37 years old. He was educated in France and succeeded his father to the throne in 1932, as a boy of 19. He remained on the throne during the Japanese occupation of Indo-China which was another reason for his abdication. He left the country in 1947, returning only last June, as emperor.

Good Evening
By Clint Dunathan

PATERNALISM—The scope of government's efforts to "protect" the interest of agricultural groups is sometimes amazing, sometimes amusing—but always costly.

Dunathan

The federal government last fall "saved" the Michigan apple growers by purchasing the surplus and distributing the apples back to the people through the schools, and supplying them to public institutions.

In a lean year, when the apple crop is scarcely large enough to meet market demand, the crop brings premium prices. The consumer then pays high prices for apples—but the government does not offer to "save" the consumer by reimbursing him in full or in part for the excessive cost.

So the people pay high prices in lean years and high prices in bumper crops years—plus the cost to the taxpayer of government purchase and distribution of surpluses.

• • •

THEY CAN'T WIN—While the government performs its paternalistic feats, the individual not producing apples or potatoes or corn or cotton or other price-supported crops tries to make his income meet out-go without benefit of government assistance.

Often this effort to balance his individual budget is made almost impossible by government's insistence on "protecting" the special agricultural interests.

The consumer cannot win. He is caught between artificially high food prices over the counter, and the cost of operating a paternalistic government that will not allow food prices to reach a natural level.

• • •

HEADLINES—The government's price support program for potatoes is making headlines all over the nation. Generally the program is being criticized. Undoubtedly it will be corrected—sometime in the future. When it is done there will be charges and counter-charges of politics. The potato farmer will be convinced that he has been wronged because spud price support is withdrawn or modified.

Millions of bushels of surplus potatoes, owned by the government, must be destroyed—while the consumer pays a premium market price set by the government.

Begun as a wartime expediency, the crop price support program goes merrily on, each year becoming more scandalous in its flagrant disregard for the fundamentals of sound national economy. This year Canadian-grown potatoes are even being shipped into the U. S. by speculators who sell them to the U. S. government at higher-than-market prices.

• • •

ACCEPTANCE—Schools, colleges, and other public institutions are accepting surplus commodities from the government to help prevent waste. The government points to this acceptance as proof that the price-support program is not wasteful.

The fallacy of such a program was forcibly pointed out by the officials of one little college (Hiawasses at Madisonville, (Tenn.) who refused to accept "free" surplus potatoes.

President D. R. Youell of Hiawassee, a Methodist supported college, said:

"Price support is ridiculous. The American people must put a stop to this form of paternalism. American farmers don't need that sort of protection. Here at our school if we could not make money growing potatoes or raising chickens (and we have both without benefit of price support) we can try something else. That is the American system."

• • •

ABILITY TO PAY—There may be some who will declare that national statistics prove the consumer is able to pay higher cost-of-living prices because his income is so much greater.

James Marlow of the Associated Press has this to report on that subject:

People are little, if any, better off in 1949 than they were in 1939—although personal income has jumped from 73 billion to 211 billion in a decade.

Higher taxes and the increase in living costs have made the dollar worth much less in buying power. Living costs in 1949 were 67 per cent higher than in 1939.

The average pay of factory workers in 1949 was $55.72, compared to $23.86 in 1939. But higher taxes and living costs left the factory worker with an average increase of only $4.99 more a week than he had in 1939.

• • •

IT COSTS MONEY—Whatever way you look at price support, the program costs money directly and indirectly. The consumer pays more over the counter for government subsidized commodities, and then he pays more in taxes to the federal government for the cost of operating the program.

On top of that is the cost of maintaining programs to assist the farmers in producing more and better crops without increasing acreage, thereby creating larger surpluses.

Surplus Potatoes

Dear Editor:

The U. S. Government is getting rid of 50 million bushels of surplus potatoes in the 1949 crop at a cost of 80 million dollars or so, by dumping them back to farmers at little or nothing. Meanwhile a New Orleans food broker has found that he can buy choice potatoes from Canada, pay freight and import duties, and lay them down in New Orleans cheaper than he can buy them from Maine or Idaho.

Who is paying for this cock-eyed and lunk-headed policy? It is you, you familiar old sucker, Mr. John Q. Taxpayer.

Go to the root of this monkey business, and you will find that the Department of Agriculture is carrying out regulations approved and initiated in a Congress that was under the thumb of the farm bloc. The whole plan is self-defeating, leading to tremendous waste, and one of the costliest jokes evtr foisted on a long-suffering public. And it was conceived in the stupid minds of officials who never earned a business dollar in their lives.

Instead of staining these potatoes blue and thus making them unsaleable, it would be far better to distribute them, even at considerable cost, to the needy, either here, or in China, or Europe, than to destroy them. In a world of want and woe such as this is, the curse of God Almighty must be awaiting the wanton fools who destroy good food. But better yet, let us abandon the present system of high price supports.

We've played the fool, and now the starry-eyed dreamers in Washington are at the end of their rope. Such wicked and wasteful practices are showing up the Administration in its true colors. Let us stop throwing good money away. Our tax bills are fast becoming intolerable.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Of all the great metropolitan sucker joints dotting the U. S. A., none, perhaps, furnishes easier picking for the gambling fraternity than Southern California and the corresponding coast of the Eastern United States—Florida. And no place in Florida has become a more lush sporting ground for the underworld than the strip of castles-on-the-sand called Miami Beach.

There Joe Adonis, partner of Frankie Costello, who in turn is a partner of Bill Helis, the good friend of President Truman's military attache, General Vaughan, runs the roulette wheels of the famed Colonial Inn. There also a county sheriff has been known to get a campaign contribution of $20,000 to elect him to an office that pays only $7,500. And there also the swank hotels receive up to $125,000 annually merely for the lease of their bookmaking concession.

And today in Miami Beach one of the most interesting political moves in the U. S. A. is taking place—a move by gamblers and others to remove a Miami Beach city councilman, Melvin Richard, who favors enforcement of the law regarding gambling.

Melvin Richard was elected to the city council with the help of the man who now is seeking to recall him, one Harry Plissner. This is the most interesting phase of the picture. For the Miami Beach lesson in bizarre government would seem to indicate that the gambling kings looked ahead months in advance and planted their man alongside the future councilman who later would help run the city.

GAMBLERS LOOK AHEAD

At any rate, well before Melvin Richard began running for office, Harry Plissner made himself his political adviser and later his virtual campaign manager.

"We spent so much time together that my wife once inquired whether I was married to her or to him," says Councilman Richard. And the only that they really rowed about during the campaign was Richard's anxiety to know where the campaign funds were coming from.

Plissner, however, brushed him off. Furthermore, Plissner did not disclose his own checkered career, and Councilman Richard did not know, among other things, that Harry Plissner's record in Springfield, Mass., showed that on Sept. 21, 1935, he was twice fined $75 for promoting a lottery, and that on June 10, 1936, the convictions were sustained.

He also did not know that after Springfield became uncomfortable Plissner moved to Baltimore, where he was indicted on Jan. 24, 1938 for operating a gambling device; with another indictment on Jan. 20, 1942. In both cases he managed to escape a guilty verdict, though meanwhile he conducted three pinball machine setups near Ft. Meade, Md., during the heyday of the war years.

"OPEN CITY" FOR GAMBLERS

All this, Counciman Richard did not know. But he did become suspicious when, immediately after election, Plissner wanted to appoint a friend as manager of the Bayshore golf course, where a bookmaking operation had been conducted.

After the campaign also Plissner changed his tune about law enforcement.

"He told me," says Councilman Richard, "that this strict enforcement policy, which I had espoused during my campaign, made excellent campaign material, but that if I would give it some thought, I would realize that it was ridiculous to carry out such a program. He told me that with the money and power behind the gambling interests, even if I were able to prevent them from operating, which he doubted, the best I could get out of it would be my removal from office by recall.

"He told me I had to be practical and meet this problem sensibly, that if I refused, I would find myself worse off than prior to my election, and that if I went along I would find myself an important political figure."

Councilman Richard, however, refused to go along; and there was a temporary break with his former campaign manager. Finally Plissner came back, this time with a proposition that they open the city to punchboards.

$750,000 FOR PUNCHBOARDS

"He told me," says Richard, "that he had engineered a deal whereby the exclusive operation of punchboards would be given to four men. He emphasized that he would be one of the four. He told me that I need not become involved in any fashion, that I would never have to discuss the matter with anyone else, that I would not have to sign any papers, and that I would receive one-fifth of the net income through legitimate channels.

"He described these legitimate channels as fees for legal work, purchases or sales of real estate and other methods which could be devised.

"He told me that the net income from the exclusive punchboard operation was estimated at about $750,000 per year. He told me that the punchboards would be distributed to all drugstores and other retail stores, in hotels and night clubs.

"He said that in consideration for my gaining the benefit of this income of approximately $200,000 a year, I would have to consent to the maintenance of a 'liberal policy' in the city of Miami Beach. He told me that the S & G, syndicate, the most powerful gambling group in the city, would then open and commence operations as in years past.

"He said that I would be permitted to level vicious attacks at the S & G syndicate and upon the gambling gentry at council meetings," continued Councilman Richard, "but that I was never to discuss the matter with the city manager or the chief of police privately.

FAKE GAMBLING RAIDS

"I would ride with the chief of police and several police officers in a squad car on certain occasions and we would raid certain important gambling locations. He assured me these raids would be highly dramatic and there would be glowing newspaper reports and that the public would be satisfied that I was bending every effort to keep my campaign promises."

Murder Alibis Never Change

Ruark Gets Tired Of Same Old Song

By ROBERT C. RUARK

NEW YORK—The cliches of murder, as they are invariably presented in the courtrooms of the land, could almost qualify as amusing if tragedies were not forever involved. By that I mean the corpus delectable don't laugh, and even the killer is apt to feel uncomfortable for a spell.

Occasionally I have yearned to be a lawyer, if only to develop a flock of new defenses for my clients who get caught with the body on the floor and the gun in the fist.

Take a hinge at the new one from Minnesota. "A 23-year old brunette insisted today that playboy so-and-so 36-year old married lawyer, who was shot fatally yesterday as they struggled for possession of the gun, was the father of her expected child."

Miss Blank, it went on, had not yet been given a pregnancy test, her lawyer said. "We are waiting until her mind clears up, to question her further," he said. It also says that Miss Blank fled from the defunct duck's office shortly after the shooting, crying in anguished tones: "My honey! My honey!" It says only two shots were fired (while they struggled for the gun) one of which went wild, the other bullseying the dead dude's heart.

Always the Playboy

All my life in this business I have been sitting in on stories in which the stiff got it as they struggled wildly for the gun, where everything went black and the attorneys had to wait for the mind to clear up, where the first shot went wild and the second one hit, where the dame did it because she was caught with a Woods' Colt, where she wept over the corpse and said, quote, "my honey, my darling, what have I done?" In these cases the bloke on the floor is always described as a playboy.

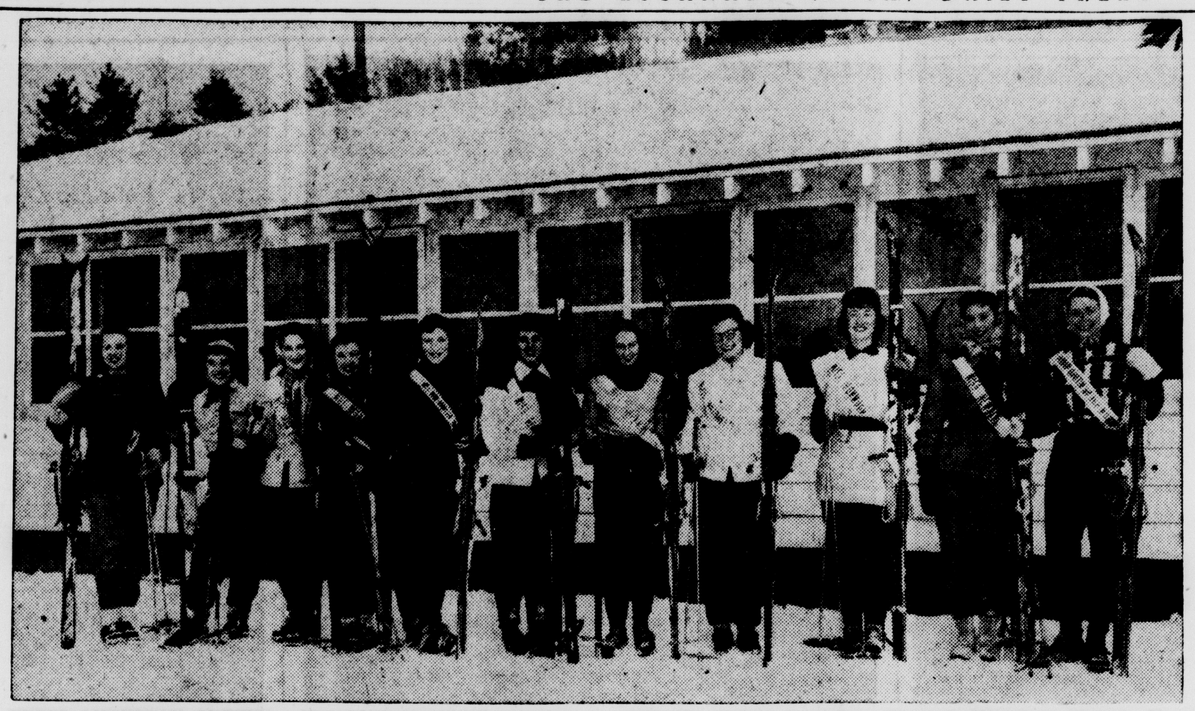

It is an odd thing how total amnesia smothers the client as soon as the smoke curls from the barrel of the Smith & Wesson; it is peculiar how they always struggle for the gun; it is mandatory that they are always sorry for the deceased and aloha him to Heaven with my darling, my darling, and it is funny how the lawyers always wait for the mind to clear, thereby establishing temporary insanity. Heaven endow that temporary insanity with permanence. You never know when you'll need it.

As soon as you call a chilled lover a 'playboy," you have already cinched the defence, and if you can locate him on a yacht or tie him to a series of flamboyant affairs the defendant is as good as out and hired by a burlesque wheel. In the annals of crime a playboy inspires no sympathy, possibly because the jury, afflicted with economic problems and nagging wives, is jealous of any gent who can qualify for the title.

Somehow, too, in the curious heads of citizens who are forced to sit in judgment on murder trials, the fact that the babe loves the boy, and maybe even caught a baby off him, minimizes the sin of speeding him to the harp-country. This is especially true of juries with women aboard, and the legal eagles all know it and trade on it.

"Everything Went Black"

I have watched a few score defendants in the dock, with the dress demurely off the knee and a plunging neckline for the prosecutor to inspect, and they always give you that everything-went black-as-we-struggled-for-the-gun routine. The truth is that people who go around with loaded guns generally intend to employ same for a definite purpose, such as shooting people they don't like, but it rarely comes out that way in court. Total amnesia is the rule.

Candidates in the Queen of the North contest were judged for skiing and skating ability as well as personality and poise.

Labor Board Says Soo Food Firm Is Guilty Of Unfair Practices

AP Special Washington Service

WASHINGTON —(AP)— The National Labor Relations Board has ruled Pacific Gamble-Robinson Co., wholesale grocery firm of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., guilty of unfair labor practices in its dealings with an AFL union.

The NLRB decision and order said the company violated the Labor Relations Act in refusing to bargain after Aug. 30, 1948, with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers of America, Local 328.

The union called a strike against the company on Aug. 27, 1948. Thirteen employes—the entire union membership employed by the firm—participated. At issue was a demand for increased wages.

The NLRB said the company "in order to break the strike" began hiring replacements on Aug. 30, 1948, offering a higher wage than had been proposed to the union.

The NLRB decision and order directs the company to:

(1) Offer reinstatement to their former or substantially equivalent positions to Lawrence Tubman, Charles Halonen, George Chapman, Norbert Roy, jr., Ernest Gregg, Charles Strobridge, Garfield Gibbons, Ivan Avery and Gerald Wilson.

(2) Make good to the nine "any loss of pay they may have suffered by reason of dihcrimination against them" for the period between the date of the discrimination and Sept. 9, 1949, when an intermediate report was issued, plus any period between the board's order of Feb. 7 and the date of compliance by the company.

(3) Upon request, bargain collectively with the union as exclusive representative of the employes, including truck drivers, receiving and shipping clerk, and warehousemen, but excluding office and clerical employes, working foremen, and superisors as defined in the labor law.

(4) Cease and resist from: refusing to bargain colectively with the union; unilaterally offering or granting higher rates of pay or other improved conditions of employment without first bargaining with the union in respect to them; discouraging membership in the Union, and in any other manner interfering with or restraining, or coercing its employes in the exercise of their right to self-organization.

The union early in 1948 had sought an increase in the 77 cents an hour pay scale for workers in the first six months of employment, plus other increases. During negotiations the company offered a 10-cent an hour boost but the union rejected this.

The NLRB said that the company, however, began on Aug. 30 1948, to offer replacements a starting wage of 98 cents an hour, or 11 cents more than offered the union.

Poisoners and club-murderers have a harder row to hoe, since it is difficult to struggle over a vial of strychnine, and a club is such a blunt instrument. You can't stand up and tell the court that you slipped him a jolt of cyanide because you loved him, nor can you holler "my honey!" when you just knocked the top off his head with a poker.

There is no doubt that the contested pistol is the ideal weapon in these cases, but golly-ned, you get tired of the same old old song. If I am a juror I might very well be inclined to vote "aye" in favor of a dame who said quietly that she didn't like the bum, came to call for the express purpose of shooting him, and hit him square with the first volley. It would be a switch, anyhow.

No Health Found In Cleaning Price

LOS ANGEELES,—(AP)—A court has ruled that establishing a minimum charge for cleaning suits and topcoats will not improve the public health.

The State Board of Dry Cleaners sought to restrain one business from doing the work for less than the minimum charging that public health and safety would be threatened. Superior Judge Clarence Hanson denied an injunction holding that a price increase would not raise health standards.

No Clues Uncovered In Mystery Murder At Seattle Hotel

SEATTLE—(AP)—Seattle police reported no new developments today in their investigation of the hotel room slaying of 49-year-old Vertin L. Deegan.

Deegan's body was found last Friday in a gas-filled room of a small downtown Seattle hotel, his wrists and ankles tightly bound.

Det. Sgt. I. A. O'Mera said Deegan was identified by a social security card and an uncashed welfare check on his person. Papers in his pocket showed he had a brother, Edward Deegan, in Marquette, Mich.

Sgt. O'Mera said it appeared Deegan was murdered but no motive was apparent.

Police today said they were searching for a man named "Vic" and a woman whose name was unknown. Officers would not divulge their possible connection with the case.

The first lighthouse built by the federal government was put up in 1791 on the tip of Cape Henry, Va., and served 90 years.

HALF-CENTURY HIGHLIGHTS

"WALKIE-TALKIES," most people think, were a marvelous development of World War II, when the portable sending and receiving sets gave untold assistance to combat troops. But the walkie-talkie idea is almost as old as radio itself, as proved by the 1919 picture at left above. This was inventor W. W. MacFarlane, of Philadelphia, with his "portable wireless telephone," allowing two persons to carry on conversations "50 yards or more distant." Pieces of stove pipe served as an aerial for Mr. MacFarland's set. Today, the "walkie-talkie" and its numerous cousins are used for such assorted activities as search and rescue work, directing traffic, conducting golf tournaments, marshalling parades and even at college commencement exercises.

WATER STRIKE—To water-short New Yorkers the finding of a new water supply is cause for rejoicing. Here, officials of the Ambassador Hotel are all smiles as they watch workers tap an old, unused well in the hotel's basement. The spring was used by a brewery once located on the site.

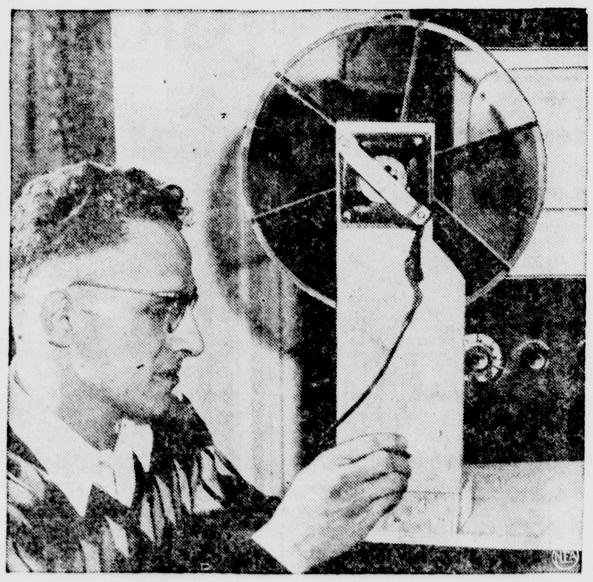

GOING UP — The Navy's guided missile, the "Aerobee," heads upward after being fired from the experimental guided missile ship, USS Norton Sound, during a recent test in the North Pacific. The rocket reached an altitude of 50 miles, during which it recorded cosmic ray data which it transmitted back to the ship.

BACK IN THE SADDLE—Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas, who suffered serious injuries when he was thrown from a horse last October, is not one to be discouraged easily. The justice, vacationing at Tucson, Ariz., is seen setting out on a long ride.

GIVES COLOR TELEVISION A WHIRL—With an outlay of 30 cents, Forrest W. Killy, above, 27-year-old electrician of Roselle, N. J., rigged up his television set to receive experimental color telecasts. Killy astounded the TV experts with the three-color cellophane wheel, powered by an old phonograph moter, which turned his black-and-white receiver into a full-color set, making him perhaps the only citizen in the U. S. except President Truman to receive television in color.

RAISIN' CANE—Dr. James B. Inscho of Kansas City, Mo., looks over his collection of 2000 canes, said to be one of the largest and finest in the United States. The doctor values the canes, made of materials ranging from paper to pearl, at $10,000.

NEW GREAT-GRANDSON — Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late President, got her first look at her new great-grandson, Nicholas Delano Seagraves, in Portland, Ore. Five months old, he is the son of Van H. Seagraves and the former Anna Eleanor (Sistie) Dahl. (NEA Telephoto)

NATIONALIZATION LEAVES THEM COLD — British butchers, grocers and fishmongers will display this poster which takes a slap at nationalization of the cold storage industry. Posters were provided by the Cold Storage Trade Action Committee.

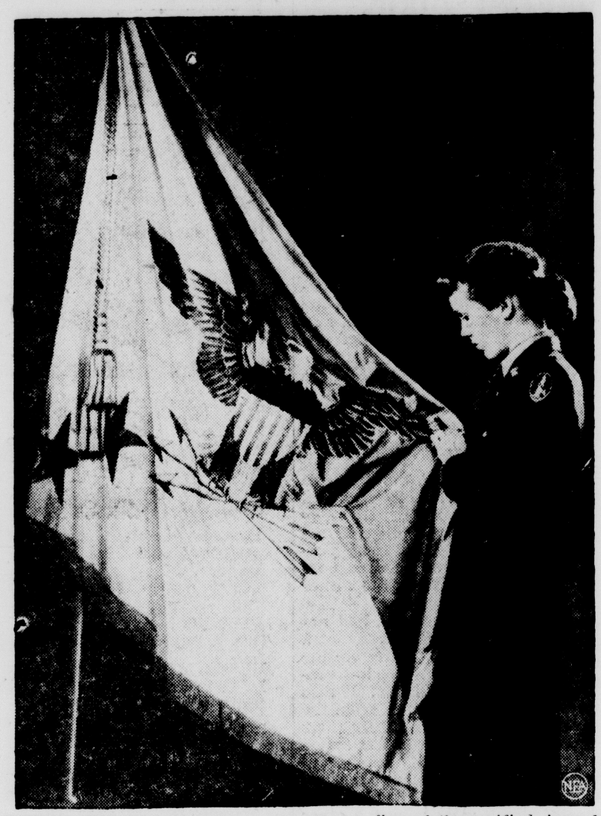

SUPER SEPARATES . . . The brief peplum jacket with ¾ sleeves, shirt collar and pearl buttons is worn with a permanently pleated skirt of nylon.

BLUE BELL NECKLACE . . . Delicate flowers in blue and rhinestones, with bangle bracelet, by Halbe.

CHAIN CHOKER . . . Bold, gold-plated necklace with matching tag bracelet, budget priced, by Halbe.

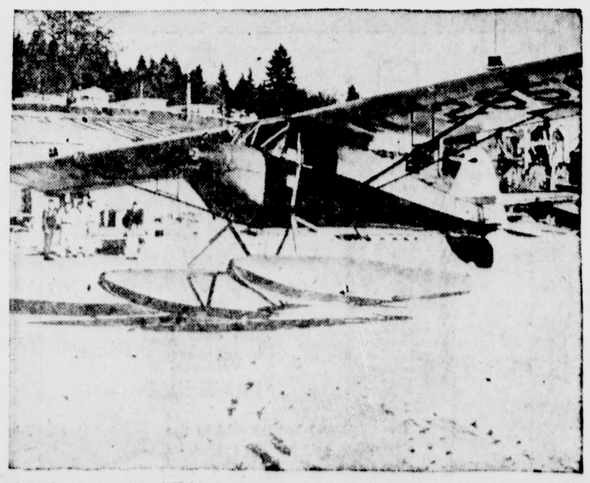

UNDER ONE FLAG—The handsome new flag of the unified Armed Forces is unfurled in Washington by WAC Private Corrine Gillis. The banner, hand-embroidered in Philadelphia, is dominated by the American eagle holding three golden arrows for the Army, Navy and Air Force. The diagonally-divided background is of medium blue and white.

DOC'S GRIPPERS TAKE HOLD—Dr. F. D. Stalford, 76, an enterprising dentist of Walters, Okla., shows the ice grippers that he invented to give pedestrians a steady footing on icy sidewalks. Stalford said orders are coming in from all over the country and he has turned an empty storeroom into a gripper assembly plant.

TOUCH TYPING IN 90 MINUTES — Philip Gross of Brooklyn N. Y., shows the keyboard of his "Tuch-Rite" typewriting system with which he claims he can teach anybody how to type in 90 minutes. Gross, who has been studying typing since 1925, bases his system on the simultaneous hearing, sight and touch theory.

PILOT'S A GOOD SKATE—When a freak cold spell put ice on Lake Washington, at Seattle, pilot Bill Fisk took the occasion to do a little fancy skating with his plane. Here he prepares to skid down the ice for a takeoff, using his regular pontoons. Fisk said he doesn't recommend the sport for amateur flyers.

The agents are Vera Mammarella of Flushing, holding a tight grip on the Angora, and Mary Glynn of Bayside, operating the sprayer.

Youth Tells Of Life In Greece

Nick Babladelis Rotary Speaker

The average day laborer in Greece receives a daily wage equivalent to $1 per day in American money, Nick Babladelis, stated in the course of a talk before the Manistique Rotary club at its Monday noon luncheon. The needs of these people are simple, said the speaker, but this only pays for the family's food requirement. Clothing needs, he said, are supplied by American relief.

Bread and olive oil, are the basic food of the people in this particular strata of life, but a profusion of vegetables adds to the food supply.

Prices are high in that land, he said and while American aid is appreciated, it also has a deterring effect upon the economy of that country because some items —tobacco, for instance—are raised in Greece and unsalable surplus has therefore been created.

He stated that recent letters from Greece tell of a flareup between the Communists and the federal troops. It is claimed that the Communists have made a practice of kidnaping Greek children and taking them into countries behind the iron curtain where they are indoctrinated and taught to fight against their own people.

The young man's uncle, Peter Babladelis, introduced the speaker.

The Rotary club, at a business session voted to commend the Manistique Concert Band for the fine program it gave at last Wednesday evening's concert.

The club also voted to request the city council to withhold action on the proposed filling in of the quarry pool until a full survey of the situation has been made.

Three-Day Mail Service Irks

No Sunday Papers First Pet Peeve

Inconvenience, due to the cutting in half of passenger and mail service on the Soo Line, hit home with telling effect Sunday morning when residents, used to getting their Sunday metropolitan newspapers were told that there was no morning train and that there would likely be no newspapers.

The various newspaper publishers anticipating this trouble have now made arrangements to have them shipped here by truck.

Mail service has also been curtailed, the Monday batch being unusually light, although the star route plying between Escanaba and Trout Lake, required to handle a heavier load of mail has relieved the situation somewhat. But here again service is hampered because there is no star route connection between Trout Lake and St. Ignace and Lower Michigan mail will be slowed in arriving here because both the Soo Line and the Duluth South Shore line are on a three day basis.

"It looks like feast and famine in the mail service," says Postmaster Frank Gierke, in commenting on the local situation. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, the mail will be light, he says and Tuesday, Thursdays and Saturdays the mail will be heavy. He says he hopes the postal department will inaugurate a system of star routes to relieve the situation, but is not sure that anything like that will be done.

Miss Helen Shust Becomes Bride Of J. L. Creighton

Baskets of white gladioli, pink carnations and ferns decorated the altar of Zion Lutheran church for the wedding on Saturday afternoon, February 11 of Miss Helen Frances Shust and Jack Lowell Creighton.

The vows were repeated before the Rev. G. A. Herbert at 2:30 o'clock. Mrs. Harry Ahlstrom, organist, played a prelude of nuptial music and also accompanied Mrs. Carl Wedell while she sang "Oh Happy Home" and "Oh Perfect Love."

The bride, daughter of Mrs. Ruth Shust, 515 Manistique avenue, was attended by Miss Ann Wygal as maid of honor and Miss Joan Creighton, junior bridesmaid. The bridegroom, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Creighton, 215 Arbutus avenue, was attended by Harold Shust, brother of the bride, as best man. Ushers were William Eck and Mac Flodin.

The bride was attired in a beige suit with brown accessories and beige hat. Her corsage was pink carnations and stephanotis. Miss Wygal wore a navy blue gabardine suit with blue and white hat and blue accessories and a corsage similar to the bride's. The junior bridesmaid's costume consisted of a navy blue taffeta dress with which she wore a rhinestone tiara and carried a colonial bouquet of pink carnations and stephanotis.

Mrs. Shust chose for her daughter's wedding a navy blue dress with gray accessories and Mrs. Creighton, mother of the bridegroom wore a navy blue gabardine suit with gray accessories. They wore corsages of red roses and stephanotis.

One hundred guests attended the reception which was held at the home of the bride following the ceremony. Baskets of mixed flowers decorated the home with a three tiered wedding cake, topped with the traditional miniature bridal couple centering the serving table. The table was covered with a lace cloth with crystal candelabra with white tapers placed on either end.

The couple left later on a wedding trip to Chicago and Rock Island, Ill., the bride wearing for traveling a beige suit with a green topper. Upon their return they will make their home in the Schofield Apartments on Deer street.

The bride is a graduate of Manistique High school and is employed in the office of the Hewitt Grocery company. The bridegroom, also a graduate of the local high school attended Augustana College and Moline Institute of Commerce. He is employed with the Ford Garage.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Linne and sons, Clifton, jr., and David, of Minneapolis attended the wedding.

Eskymo, Brave Reserves Open Stephenson Tournament Tonight

STEPHENSON — (Special to Escanaba Daily Press) — The opening game of the seventh annual Stephenson high school invitational reserve team basketball tournament tonight will be a repeat performance of that sizzling preliminary to the Gladstone-Escanaba game in Gladstone last Tuesday night.

Almost taking the play away from their varsity brothers, the Eskymo and Brave reserves that night played a hotly contested game in which the issue was much in doubt until the final gun of a second or two before the final gun.

Coach Oliver Koski's Escanaba Bees won by a 37-35 count and, needless to say, they hope to repeat again tonight in the Class B-C opener here. Escanaba and Gladstone Bees meet at 8:15 (Escanaba time) tonight.

Koski's cagers, who will leave Escanaba by car at 6:30 this evening, are Jim McCarthy and John Prokos, forwards; Jim Nyquist, center, and Casper Bartley and Bob Paterick, guards—the starting five—and reserves Dick Wellman, Joe Roose, Stuart Jensen, John Peterson and Steve Piche.

The Class D-E tourney got underway last night with the following results:

Rock 29, Trenary 23
Rapid River 46, Felch 29
Perkins 49, Daggett 30
Powers 50, Carney 20

Immediately after the Eskymo-Brave game tonight, the Menominee and Stephenson reserve teams will clash in another Class B-C affair. St. Joseph's of Escanaba will play the Escanaba-Gladstone winner at 8:15 Thursday night, and Lourdes of Marinette will play the Menominee-Stephenson winner at 9:30 Thursday night.

Here's the lineup for tomorrow night:

8:15 p. m.—Rock vs. Rapid River

9:30 p. m.—Perkins vs. Powers.

The Class D-E championship will be played at 8:15 and the Class B-C title game is set for 9:30 Saturday night.

(All times above are Eastern Standard or Escanaba time).

Austrian Women Win World's Slalom Honors

ASPEN, Colo. — (AP) — Austria's go-getting gals were the big show in the opening day of the World Alpine Ski championships, and Austria's men expect to cut a few fancy capers themselves.

The Austrian women, led by a laughing blonde lovely, Dagmar Rom, swept six of the first seven places in the women's giant slalom yesterday.

Miss Rom raced down the tricky, three-quarter mile course in one minute, 29.6 seconds to take first place.

The men compete today in the same event. And it would be no great surprise, even to the Austrians, if they again dominated the standings of the top ten.

"Our women were very good, even better than we expected," said Ernst Skardarasy, manager of the Austrian team. "Our men? Oh, they are very good, too * * * *"

This opinion wasn't challenged by any of the expert observers. They noted that the Austrian women were hitting the gates at more perfect angles and pushing harder for speed than other competitors. The Austrian men perform the same way.

Best of the Austrian males in the giant slalom are Christian Pravda, a ski manufacturer, Egon Schopf, their national champion; Edi Mall, their champ in 1947, and Franz Gabl.

While the spectators were prepared for another great Austrian team showing, it was doubted that they could again carry off first place honors. If they do, the choice is Pravda.

Among the 63 men from 13 nations scheduled to compete today, the popular favories were Zeno Colo, 29-year-old Italian farmer, and Stein Eriksen, 22, a student from Norway.

Others mentioned often in first place speculation were James Couttet of France, Toni Matt of the United States, and Fernand Grosjean of Switzerland.

The racers will travel a dangerous one and one-fourth mile course with a 1,600 foot drop. On the way down they must hit 33 gates, and hit them dead center or risk a fall that means curtains for their ambitions.

The course is the same as that run yesterday by the women, except for a half-mile addition at the very top of slippery Mount Aspen. This half-mile strip is known as the "elevator shaft" because of its almost vertical decline.

Red Wings' Crack Line Is 1-2-3 In Hockey Scoring

MONTREAL — (AP) — Detroit's crack line of Ted Lindsay, Sid Abel and Gordon Howe top the National Hockey League in scoring.

Lindsay, leading for a 14th straight week, has 19 goals and 39 assists for 58 points. Abel has netted 55 points, Howe 50.

The trio caged nine goals last week, with Howe making the big jump from sixth place. He scored eight points during the week.

Montreal's Maurice Richard placed fourth in scoring with 45 points.

Bill Durnan of Montreal is the No. 1 goaltender, allowing only an average of 2.17 goals per game. Turk Broda, Toronto's ace netminder, has the most shutouts, eight.

Chicago's Bill Gadsby has spent the most time in the penalty box, 113 minutes. Lindsay is second to Gadsby, having spent 101 minutes in the jug.

Eastern Universities Approve 'Sanity Code'

NE WYORK—(AP)—Five famous eastern universities—Harvard, Yale, Cornell, Pennsylvania, and Columbia—affirmed their faith today in the N. C. A.'s "sanity code."

Said Grayson Kirk, provost of Columbia, "We feel quite strongly that the unchecked subsidization of intercollegiate athletics could result in the complete commercialization of any sports where income is involved, such as football and basketball."

The N. C. A. A.'s "sanity code" and subsidization generally have become prime problems in college ranks this winter.

The five big eastern schools along with 21 other institutions across the country were asked four questions in an Associated Press survey, as follows:

"1—Does your university subsidize athletes, and if so to what extent in what sports?

"2—Do your alumni subsidize athletes privately and if so is this with or without the knowledge of the university?

"3—If subsidization, either open of sub rosa, continues unchecked what future do you predict for American college sports?

"4—Do you subscribe to the N. C. A. A. 'sanity code?'"

Of the five universities, Cornell and Pennsylvania have been the most successful in football in recent years, last year's Cornell team winning eight against one defeat, while Pennsylvania won four and lost four.

At the other extreme, Harvard won only one and lost eight and Columbia won two and lost seven. Yale won four and lost four.

Said Harold E. Stassen, president of Pennsylvania: "The University of Pennsylvania subscribes to the N. C. A. A. 'sanity code' and have signed this agreement. The University of Pennsylvania is abiding by that code and proposes to continue to support it."

C. W. De Kiewiet, acting president of Cornell, answered questions one and two with a flat "no" and number four with "yes".

Concerning the third question, Dr. De Kiewiet said "I omit number three for acceptance of that question would imply assent to the inference that there is unchecked subsidization."

Dr. Charles Seymour, president of Yale, wrote:

"Yale does not 'subsidize' athletes as athletes. We grant scholarships for reasons of scholastic and personal quality to our students, including athletes. But in the award of such scholarships no distinction is made between those who are participating and those who are not participating in intercollegiate sports."

Gophers Dump Wolverines To Fifth Place

MINNEAPOLIS —(AP)— The stumbling Michigan basketball team was tripped up by Minnesota last night 53-48 and fell into a tie with the Gophers for fifth place in the Big Ten standings.

The Wolverines, who meet Illinois Saturday in a third straight road game, fought all the way but never could quite seize the lead.

The loss was their fifth in eight league starts. Each team now has an identical 3-5 record.

Minnesota held narrow margins all through the first half with the score tied 39-all with a minute left to go. But a field goal and a free shot then gave Ozzie Cowles' boys a 32-29 advantage.

In the last half the score was knotted successively at 35-35, 37-37, and 46-46. The last deadlock was broken by a field goal by Gopher Jerry Salovich and a pair of free throws by Jerry Mitchell.

Whitey Skoog, the Minnesota ace, dominated the scoring with 11 field goals, good for 22 points. Michigan's guard, lefty Hal Morrill was high for Michigan with 15 points. Mitchell was right behind him with 14 for Minnesota.

Ohio State is now leading the conference with eight wins and one defeat. Wisconsin is second with a 5-2 record, Indiana is third with a 5-3 mark, and Illinois and Iowa are tied with four victories and four defeats each.

Powers, Mike's Meet In Feature City Tilt Tonight

Second place Powers meets third place Mike's Bar in the feature contest of tonight's city league basketball program at 8:30 in the junior high gym. Clairmont Transfer faces the K-C in the opener at 6:30 and Groos Drug plays a make-up game with the Gladstone Lions at 7:30. The 9:30 tilt brings together People's Bar and the Escanaba Merchants.

Both Powers and Mike's are in the running for the Class B championship and both will be fighting hard to keep their title chances alive.

In their only other meeting Mike's led all the way but their five "iron" men weakened in the final minutes of the game and Powers walked off with a 40-37 victory. The two teams are expected to be at full strength this evening and Mike's Bar will have a couple of reserves to throw into action when the first stringers show signs of fatigue. The score couldn't be much closer than in their last meeting but it's hard to predict the winner.

In the first game tonight the K-C and Clairmont Transfer will be struggling to keep out of the Class B cellar. Last month the Knights managed to eke out a close 27-25 decision but that wasn't exactly a convincing victory. The Gladstone Lions will be out for revenge in their 7:30 clash with Groos Drug. The Drugs took them into camp, 40-32, in a Class A game on January 10.

In tonight's finale fifth-place People's Bar will be trying to trade positions with the fourth-place Merchants and a victory will do the trick. People's have strengthened their lineup by the addition of Moose Gustafson to their roster.

People's Bar, Wait Window, Cloverland and the Shamrocks were victors in city basketball league play at the junior high gym last night.

Cloverland set some sort of a record when it amassed 81 points in an 81-19 win over Bark River. Dick Pryal hit 36, Elroy and John Zimmerman had 14 and 13, respectively, and Paul DeBen, Bark River high school coach, had 13 of the losers' 19 points.

The Shamrocks weren't far behind with a 76-37 win over Gladstone Lions. Bob Dufour, who missed the Peshtigo trip, hit 29 and Tom St. Germain and Ed Gauthier scored 18 and 12, respectively. Dick Williamson and Cliff Gillis hit 16 and 11 for the losers.

Wait tipped the K-Cs, 45-30 with Bob McCarthy and Ray Roberts showing the way with 17 and 12. Al Taylor scored 16 for the K-Cs. People's was a 47-32 winner over Clairmont Transfer. Don Ohman and Jack Beck scored 18 and 10 for the victors and Jerome Besson and Don Ashland contributed 12 and 11 for the transfer tally.

Steel Propeller For Miss Canada IV

LONDON, Ont.,—(AP)—British craftsmen will make a new steel propellor for Harold Wilson's Harmsworth trophy challenger, the speedboat Miss Canada IV.

Wilson returned today from a flying trip to England where he conferred with designers. In his unsuccessful bid in the Harmsworth races at Detroit last year Wilson used a bronze propeller, the blades of which bent badly, causing loss of considerable power.

FENCERS DRAW

EAST LANSING — (AP) — The Michigan State fencing team fought to a 13½-13½ draw with Illinois here last night. Michigan State won the foil and sabre by identical 6-3 scores but Illinois took the epee 7½-1½ to tie up the meet.

Buckeyes Squeeze By 'Mighty Mo.' In 47-46 Cage Tilt

NEW YORK—(AP)—Two of the nation's ranking college basketball teams had shocks last night and but one survived.

Ohio State (16-3.) third ranked in today's Associated Press poll moved down to Columbia to play the last-place Missouri five of the Big Seven.

The Western Conference leaders barely got by Missouri, 47-46, after scoring six points in one minute. All America candidate Dick Schnittker hit the winning goal with 70 seconds remaining.

In the far west Santa Clara (12-8) upset San Francisco (14-6) in overtime, 51-43. The Dons, last year's National Invitation champions, rank 12th in the (AP) poll.

Bradley (22-3) took the Missouri Valley conference lead with a 59-46 victory over Oklahoma A. and M.

The Braves rank second nationally.

Kentucky (18-4) exploded for a 77-57 rout of Alabama. But the Wildcats still remain in second place in the Southeastern Conference with 8 and 2 behind Vanderbilt. The Commodores (15-16) blasted Mississippi State 85-50 to stay a game ahead.

Nebraska (13-5) shot into a tie with Colorado for the Big Seven lead by edging Oklahoma, 57-55.

Beloit, a ranking small-college quintet, won its 20th game in 22 starts, defeating Hawaii, 80-52.

In the Southwest Conference Southern Methodist defeated Rice 55-46, to take over first from Texas A. & M.

Brickels Is Not An MSC Coach Candidate

OXFORD, O.,—(AP)— Michigan State College today could cross off John Brickles of Miami University as a prospect for one of its vacant assistant football coach spots.

Brickels said yesterday that he would decline offers from both the East Lansing, Mich., school and Northwestern University. He is head basketball coach at Miami and also serves as assistant grid mentor.

A former member of the staff of the pro ball Cleveland Browns, he came to Miami a year ago.

Hawks Won By 10-1, Indians By 5-2 In Previous Meetings

When the Escanaba Hawks and Gladstone Indians clash at the fairgrounds indoor rink here at 8:30 Thursday night, it will be the sawoff game for the season to date.

In other words, the arch Delta county rivals have met twice to date and each has won once. In Escanaba, the Hawks won handily by a 10-1 count. Later at Gladstone, the Indians won by a 5-2 count.

In another U. P. Hockey league game, they'll settle the issue Thursday night, and the largest crowd to witness a U. P. league tilt this year is expected to be on hand.

The Hawks will hold a fast two-hour workout at the indoor rink from 7:30 to 9:30 tonight. It will mark their first game or practice at the Escanaba arena since the figure skaters "moved in" two weeks ago in preparation for the Escanaba ice revue.

Not only will the Hawks hold their first workout in two weeks but they'll perform for the cameraman as well. Bernie Schultz, Escanaba Daily Press photographer, will be on hand to take individual action shots during the practice session.

Meanwhile, Gladstone is grooming itself for the "rubber" game in hopes of repeating the 5-2 win played in sub-zero weather two weeks ago.

Escanaba and Gladstone may have trouble getting up to full strength or even near full strength for games away from home, but it goes without saying that when they meet at the fairgrounds rink this Thursday night both teams will have all the manpower they can possibly muster.

Yankees Are Team To Beat: Boudreau

CHICAGO—(AP)—Manager Lou Boudreau of the Cleveland Indians regards the New York Yankees as the team "to beat" in the American League this season.

His Indians, he figures, will wind up "somewhere" in the first division.

The handsome tribe pilot came up with these other predictions at his nearby home yesterday:

Boston will be knocking at the door again. Detroit is the most improved club in the league.

"Those four clubs will fight it out," Boudreau added, "and it is my belief that any one of the four can win the pennant. I expect the race to be that close.

"The Indians probably will go in as the dark horse team. It wouldn't take much for us to slip by the Yankees and the Red Sox.

"If Bob Feller has a good year, along with Joe Gordon and myself, we will win."

"It Seems To Me"

BY JIM WARD

Off the cuff: The tenth annual Escanaba bowling tournament which got underway at the Arcade alleys last weekend has the largest entry list of any previous city meet . . . Sixty teams, 100 doubles combinations and 193 singles contestants . . . The defending champions are Y-Tavern in five-man, Tom Irish and Bud Stade in doubles, Rudy Gafner in the singles and Lawrence Beauchamp in the all-events . . . Unless the totally unexpected occurs, there will be no repeaters.

* * *

Harry L. Lindquist, native of Escanaba and former resident of Iron Mountain, is president of the New York Athletic club which has a membership of 7,609 . . . Lindquist, a former track and football star at Iron Mountain, has a wide interest in athletics . . . In Chicago, where he owned community newspapers, he played basketball for the Central YMCA and fired a rifle expertly also . . . He went to New York in 1921 and has been active in the NYAC ever since . . . He sees every Yankee home game, Babe Ruth is his alltime favorite baseball player and he likes to reminisce about the Cubs' Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance double play combination . . . And as you might guess, his modern baseball hero is Joe DiMaggio . . . Lindquist, incidentally, visited Escanaba a few years ago.

* * *

Ishpeming is booming a national ski museum for its fair city, the birthplace of ski jumping in America . . . Special ducats are being sold in Escanaba and elsewhere in the U. P. for the Ishpeming ski jumping tournament . . . They will admit you to one or both days of the tourney and proceeds go toward defraying tournament expenses and the surplus will go toward the museum . . . In Gladstone, you can buy them at Central and Dehlin's drug stores and in Escanaba—you guessed it—at Gust Asp's and the West End drug store.

* * *

What with the mixup in Milwaukee hockey, the Northern Lakes Hockey league standings have become lost in the shuffle, but the latest report is that Canadian Soo and Eagle River split a pair and that enabled Eagle River to vacate the league cellar for the first time this season . . . Milwaukee is now in the basement, Marquette in first, Soo second and Eagle River third.

* * *

They talk about this in hushed voices in Iron Mountain . . . Ishpeming had three jumpers in the top 10 in the national Class A ski jumping tournament in Duluth . . . Ralph Bietila fifth, Jim Lawson eighth and Joe Perrault tenth . . . Perrault sprained his ankle twice this season or you could look for Joe much farther up the list than that . . . He holds the American distance mark of 297 feet set last year in Iron Mountain . . . Iron Mountain riders did well, however . . . In Class B: Dave Freeman first, John Bednarz fourth, George Pera (Kingsford) sixth and Jack Paquette (Kingsford) ninth.

* * *

But Dave Freeman's victory in Class B automatically elevates him to Class A . . . His jumps and form would have rated him well up in Class A this year, perhaps second or third . . . Iron Mountain is climbing fast in the ski jumping world . . . Freeman is the third Iron Mountain-Kingsford jumper to win a national title . . . Walter Brattlund won the senior in 1948 and Neil Bergstrom the Class B in 1945.

Badgers Trip Hawkeyes In Overtime, 66-62

CHICAGO—(AP)— Wisconsin solidified its second place standing and kept its title hopes burning in the Big Ten basketball title chase last night by outlasting Iowa 66-62 in an overtime.

The Badgers scoring sensation, Don Rehfeldt, pumped in 27 points to boost his average in seven games to 22.8. This is slightly better than the 22.6 average maintained by Iowa's Murray Wier in setting the conference scoring record of 272 points in 12 games in 1948. Rehfeldt has five to go.

Forward Don Page really was Wisconsin's hero in the tight contest at Iowa. His two free tosses in the last second locked the count 59-59 and extended the game. He dropped in an under-handed layup shot at the start of the overtime to push the Badgers ahead to their fifth league victory in seven games.

At Champaign, Indiana moved into lone possession of third place with 5-3 by blasting Illinois 83-72. Bill Garrett flipped in 20 points and Jerry Stuteville added 17 to power the Hoosiers attack. Wally Osterkorn kept Illinois from being completely smothered by collecting 28 points, 18 in the last half after the Illini went scoreless for six minutes and Indiana rushed to a 50-36 lead.

In absorbing their fourth setback in eight starts, the Illini saw 83 points piled up against them for the second time this season—the most ever scored against an Illinois team. Ohio State defeated them earlier at Columbus 83-62.

Big Ten teams return to action Saturday with Michigan at Illinois, Ohio State vs. Northwestern in Chicago Stadium, Purdue at Indiana and Iowa at Wisconsin.

Swiss Champion To Compete Feb. 25-26 At Iron Mountain

IRON MOUNTAIN — Switzerland's 1949 champion, Will Klopfenstein, today became the first foreign entry in the ski-jumping classics scheduled for Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 25-26, here on Giant Pine Mountain slide.

It will be the first midwest appearance of the 28-year-old Swiss ace who is attending art school in Milwaukee. Klopfenstein is a wood sculptor by profession.

Last spring, Klopfenstein won the jumping championship of Switzerland for the sixth time. He edged out Fritz Tschannen, who in 1948 established the World's distance championship record of 393.3 feet.

Spartans Try For Win Over Detroit

EAST LANSING—(AP)— The Michigan State basketball team will try to halt a seven-game University of Detroit win streak at the second meeting of the season between the two squads here tonight.

The Titans of Detroit have an impressive record of 15 wins against three losses. This included a 64-56 victory over Michigan State earlier this season. The only Detroit defeats were by Drake, St. Louis and Bradley, of the Missouri Valley Conference.

Bradley Closing In On Holy Cross As No. 1 Team

NEW YORK — (AP) — The team Adolph Rupp picked as the best in the nation—Bradley university — may yet justify the Kentucky Baron's faith.

The Bradley Braves, gaining momentum, are applying the screws to Holy Cross' rating as the No. 1 basketball power in the nation.

While Holy Cross today was voted the top position in the Associated Press poll for a fifth straight week, its margin has shrunk to a mere 37 points over the rampaging Braves from Peoria, Ill.

Last week Holy Cross held a 274-point bulge on Bradley.

Holy Cross attracted 56 first place votes from 140 sports writers and broadcasters across the country. Bradley drew only 16.

However, Bradley commanded enough second, third, and fourth place ballots to give the unbeaten Crusaders a genuine battle. Holy Cross totaled 986 points, Bradley 949.

Ohio State, Western conference kingpin, advanced a peg to the No. 3 slot. Replacing Duquesne of Pittsburgh, which dropped to seventh.

St. John's university of Brooklyn held its fourth place ranking, while Rupp's Kentuckians flashed from seventh to fifth under the steam of seven straight triumphs. Rupp picked Bradley as the class of the nation at the start of the season.

The top teams (first place votes in parentheses and points on a 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis): included:

Team	Record	Pts.
1. Holy Cross (56)	20-0	986
2. Bradley (16)	22-3	949
3. Ohio State (8)	16-3	754
4. St. John's (8)	20-2	631
5. Kentucky (6)	18-4	485
6. Long Island (5)	17-2	458
7. Duquesne (1)	18-1	451
8. N. Carolina State (7)	18-3	365
9. W. Kentucky (5)	19-4	323
10. UCLA (3)	173-4	322

Wider Excise Tax Slashes Asked By CIO

President's Program Faulty, Says Union

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The CIO said today President Truman's tax program does not go far enough. It proposed a plan for wide excise slashes and shifting of "present tax burdens from low-income individuals to the wealthy and to high-profit corporations."

While agreeing with large parts of the president's program the labor organization recommended to Congress that it also consider in the new tax bill:

Individuals—Steps now to raise the personal individual income tax exemptions that would reduce the taxes of low income families. The idea is to look forward "to the establishment of levels of exemption which permit the maintenance of a minimum standard of living for a family of four." Mr. Truman recommended no change in individual income taxes.

Excess Profits—Reenactment of the excess profits tax on corporations, "in order to equalize the burden and the incidence of our present tax structure." Such a tax was levied in wartime but was repealed shortly after. The president did not propose such a tax.

Undistributed Profits—A new levy on the undistributed profits of corporations, instead of an increase from 38 per cent to 42 per cent in the corporation income tax rate as Mr. Truman proposed. The CIO suggested a top corporation tax of 55 per cent, which would be graduated downward in reverse proportion to the percentage of its earnings a corporation pays out in dividends. This in effect would tax the undistributed profits.

Mr. Truman, in his January 33 tax message to Congress—as later elaborated upon by the treasury—proposed a $1,000,000,000 increase in federal tax revenues through a tax program working this way:

1. A $655,000,000 slash in excise levies on furs, luggage, jewelry, toilet preparations, transportation of persons and property, and on long distance telephone and telegraph bills.

2. Plugging of tax law "loopholes" to collect an extra $500,000,000.

3. An increase of $675,000,000 in corporation income taxes and an extra levy of $400,000,000 upon inheritances and large gifts.

The CIO made no estimate of what its program would yield in additional revenue. It voiced hope Mr. Truman will veto any bill that does not produce a net gain in revenue.

Mongrel Dog And Engineer Save Life Of 2-Year-Old Boy

WILLIMATIC, CONN. — (AP)—A mongrel dog and a keen-eyed railroad engineer shared credit today for saving the life of two-year-old Jackie Green.

The youngster wandered from his home here yesterday and toddled to the railroad traocks 75 yards away.

Enginer S. A. Whyenott, at the throttle of a Boston-Hartford passenger train, sighted the pair as he rounded a bend. The boy was trying to crawl on the tracks. The dog was tugging at his clothes in an attempt to keep him out of danger.

Whyenott applied his brakes. The train ground to a halt about 25 feet from the youngster and the struggling dog.

The engineer took Jackie and the dog into the cab of the locomotive and gave them a half-mile ride to the Willimantic station.

Police returned Jackie to his frantic mother, Mrs. Marshall Green, as she was about to organize neighbors into a searching party. Jackie wasn't impressed by the danger he'd been in, police said.

But he was "tickled pink" by his train ride.

Idaho Dogsled Derby Revived

Event Set For Feb. 22 In Mountain Town

ASHTON, Idaho — (AP) — This snowy little mountain town—dogsled capital of the nation — will reinstate its colorful dog derby Washington's birthday.

At least eight experienced mushers will enter the 28th annual running of the event with their yapping teams. Prizes totaling $1,500 will be distributed.

The course is two miles long, shaped like a huge keyhole. Everett Heseman of Ashton made the record for five laps around its sharp curves in 40 minutes 31 seconds in 1938.

The race this year is called the Ashton Dog Derby, instead of the American Dog Derby, by which it was known since 1917. A combination of too much snow and financial difficulties forced cancellation of the race in 1949.

The new sponsorship also has a full program of other winter sports events for Derby Day.

Good snow cover assures a fast derby this year. If an unexpected thaw should occur, the race will be shifted to Island Park, 20 miles to the north. Only once since the first race in 1917 was the event cancelled because of lack of snow, although once the sleds were mounted on wheels and the race run over a dry track.

In this high-altitude country on the nation's backbone, game wardens, mail carriers and many ranchers use dog teams, horse drawn cutters or propellor-powered snowmobiles all winter long.

Tuberculosis Vaccine Tested In Georgia By 100,000 Guinea Pigs

COLUMBUS, Ga.—(AP)—The nation's first mass testing ground for a new anti-tuberculosis vaccine has been set up with a community of 100,000 as guinea pigs.

Columbus and Muscogee county pioneered in use of the vaccine in 1947, following an x-ray survey for traces of TB the previous year.

The new drive is to determine how effective the drug—tagged BCG— is when used on a large scale.

Beginning this week, all residents of Muscogee county and Russell county, Ala., will be offered free X-ray examinations and vaccinations with BCG, if they show no signs of TB. If infected, treatment will be provided.

Dr. Carroll E. Palmer, chief of field studies of the U. S. Public Health Department, said the mass survey would provide a rare opportunity to determine the future role BCG may play in curbing tuberculosis.

When the X-ray drive was underway in 1946, more than 70,000 were examined and those infected were given treatment.

Hence, the new project is designed also to offer a comparison of the incidence of TB before and after a move to isolate all cases in a community.

Detroit's Blitzen To Defend Title In Miami-Nassau Race

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)— The 12th annual 184-mile Miami to Nassau yacht race gets underway at noon today with a fleet of 23 yachts.

Winds of 20 to 35 miles an hour in the area were expected to give sailors a real test during the marathon run.

The start will be made from a mile east of government cut off Miami Beach. The yachts will head for Great Isaac Light, thence to Great Stirrup Bay and finally almost due south through the northwest Providence channel to the finish line at the mouth of Nassau harbor.

Defending champion Blitzen, 55-foot cutter owned by Ernest Grates and Murray Knapp of Detroit, will be in the fleet, as will such other craft as Katuna, 52-foot yawl owned by Gilbert Verney of Boston, winner of the recent Fort Lauderdale-Cat Cay race.

Storm Slows Road Traffic

Some Schools Close In Delta County

Northeast winds up to 20 miles an hour today whipped snow into roadways and caused Cornell, Bark River and Harris schools to close. School buses for those districts were not operating because of the drifts.

Henry Hathaway, meteorologist at the U. S. Weather Bureau office in Escanaba, said the blizzard was more severe east of Escanaba.

William J. Karas, Delta road superintendent - engineer, reported that drifting was bad in some sections and county roads were blowing shut faster than they could be plowed out.

The state highway department reported all trunklines open in the Upper Peninsula, but they were slippery in spots and visibility was fair to poor because of the blowing snow. In the northern part of the Lower Peninsula highways were extensively slippery following snow and freezing rain.

Chicago & North Western train No. 161 on the Chicago-Ishpeming run was three hours and 45 minutes late, but the delay was mainly due to the extra work after the coal-burning trains had been pulled off, not because of the storm.

The blizzard halted commercial fishing activities in this area.

Nationwide Airlines had no plane scheduled to Escanaba or the Upper Peninsula today.

As the storm continued this morning Road Superintendent-Engineer Karas advised school officials to close the rural schools at noon and transport bus students back to their homes. Township students attending Escanaba high schools also left school shortly after noon for their homes.

Karas said that if the storm continued through the afternoon, some side roads in the county would probably be blocked for the night.

Idle Miners Not Worrying Over Two Injunctions

and we know it. That Taft-Hartley business is foolish. No contract, no work."

The federal government is marking time on enforcement of court orders to halt the strike. It has adopted a wait-and-see attitude, at least for the time being.

Lewis and the coal operators get together tomorrow in another try at writing a contract to replace the pact that expired June 30.

Lewis, acting on court instructions to revive collective bargaining "in good faith," invited the operators to start new talks.

Operators Accept

The Southern Coal Producers association was first to accept, agreeing to meet with the union at 11 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) tomorrow. Northern and southern operators quickly followed suit.

George H. Love, spokesman for the National Bituminous Coal Operators negotiating committee, sent Lewis this telegram:

"For the purpose of resolving present disputes and to adjust and settle all difference incident to the negotiations of a new national bituminous coal wage agreement, we will meet you at the Statler Hotel, Washington, D. C., at 11 o'clock a. m. Wednesday, February 15, 1950."

A spokesman for Love said the new contract talks will be conducted in a "different atmosphere" since federal court has forbidden Lewis to use four key demands.

Demands ruled illegal include Lewis' insistence on an "able and willing" clause to determine when his men work, and the right to special holidays or memorial time off.

The principal UMW demands remaining include a pay hike from $14.05 to $15.00 a day and a 15-cent-a-ton increase in the present 20-cent-a-ton royalty on coal to finance the union's health and welfare fund.

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON,— (AP) Government officials looked hopefully today on newly-arranged bargaining sessions between John L. Lewis and soft coal operators.

They felt there is a chance, at least, that the talks starting Wednesday can produce a new coal contract and prevent further wrangling in the courts.

Lewis, having sent his miners official word to get back to work as he was directed to do by a federal court judge, was simply sitting back and watching how things worked out.

But the miners stayed idle for the second day in a row despite the back-to-work order obtained under the Taft-Hartley law and despite Lewis' message that he had been given no choice but to direct them to return to the pits.

This continued defiance by the miners may eventually be cited to federal judge Richmond B. Keech as a contempt violation of his strike-end order.

But for the time being, anyway, justice department attorneys were waiting longer to see how the miners responded before starting contempt proceedings.

Officials hoped some of the miners, at least, may start drifting back to the mines in the next few days.

Derby hats, handle bar mustaches, bustle-backs and pompadours were the order of dress last night as members of the Escanaba Lions club entertained their ladies at a Valentine party. The "Beauxs and Belles" of the "Gay Nineties" program, attended by twenty-five couples, was held at the Sherman hotel.

Other highlights of the program was the presentation of a "tear jerking" "mellerdrammer" complete to an old time stage backdrop, and hisses and cheers from the audience. The cast included Francis Rooney as the villain; Dr. M. H. Gerrard, jr., as the heroine; and Mel Trams as the hero.

Other features of the evening were news reels of the Gay Nineties period, tintype studio with Gordon Sullivan as photographer, and dancing.

Habit Of Being Mean Blamed In Bathtub Murder At Detroit

DETROIT—(AP)—A young auto plant worker was held for murder today in a fatal rooming house beating.

Detectives said that John E. Booker, 27, admitted slaying 52-year-old Ivan B. Hays and blamed it on "my habit of being mean when I'm drinking."

Hays, also a factory worker, was found dead in the rooming house bathtub Suntay night. He had been cruelly beaten.

Detectives, tracing Booker through a bloodied shirt, said he met Hays in a cafe and decided to rob him.

"I demanded his money but I knew he didn't have any. When he said he didn't, I just let him have it," Booker was quoted as saying.

Black Says He Won't Run For Governor As Petitions Flop

PORT HURON, Mich.—(AP)—Former Atty. Gen. Eugene Black said today he was definitely out of the race for the Republican nomination for governor.

Black declared Jan. 4 he would run if the necessary 211,000 signatures could be obtained on petitions to place two constitutional amendments he favors on the fall ballot.

But with the exception of the thumb area, Black said today, "the reaction has been quite disappointing, in fact nil."

The amendments on which he conditioned his candidacy, would lower the voting age from 21 to 18 and ease the initiation of popular referenda.

Yale To Award U. S. Poet Prize

Library Of Congress Avoids Hot Water

NEW HAVEN, CONN. — (AP)—The administration of a poetry prize that got the Library of Congress into hot water has been taken over by Yale university.

The university will attempt each year to choose the outstanding poem or book of poetry written by an American citizen, and present the author the $1,000 Bolligen prize.

That was the award which the Library of Congress presented to expatriate Ezra Pound in 1948, stirring up a storm of criticism.

Pound's prize-winning work, "Pisan Cantos," was assailed by some literary critics as incomprehensible nonsense. Non - literary congressmen were not so much concerned with the author's style as with his politics. Pound, an admirer of Mussolini who remained in Italy in World War II and broadcasts for the Fascists, had been indicted for treason, adjudged insane and committed to a Washington, D. C., hospital.

The Library of Congress decided to keep out of the prize-awarding field in the future as a result of a forceful hint from the congressional committee which supervises it.

also $579,646 for sprinkler installations and $283,101 for other fire protection measures.

New college buildings account for another $11,198,851. These include two new medical buildings at the University of Michigan and Wayne university, costing $5,600,000, and a new veterinary medicine building at Michigan State college for 2,000,000.

The governor's budget also includes $2,400,00 for a 50-bed addition to the Gaylord tuberculosis sanitorium and a public health laboratory in Grand Rapids.

The governor noted:

"The mental hospital program * * * * accounts for almost all of the increase in this capital outlay budget. It is important to note that state operating costs will be held almost to current levels if this budget is followed."

$100,000 FOR ESCANABA

Legalized Hiring Hall In Maritime Industry Sought By CIO Board

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The CIO executive board today considered an immediate appeal to congress to legalize the Maritime Unions' hiring hall system. Board members talked in terms of getting action in time to head off a new shipping and waterfront crisis.

The supreme court yesterday cast doubts on the legality of the hiring halls plans of all seagoing and waterfront unions, by which their members get preference in employment as jobs turn up.

The tribunal refused to review the decision of the circuit court of appeals in New York, which had ruled the CIO-National Maritime Unions hiring hall contract with four Great Lakes shipper to be illegal under the Taft-Hartley act. That had the effect of upholding the lower courts decision, which in turn had backed up the findings of the national Labor Relations board. The Taft-Hartley labor law forbids job discrimination on account of membership or non-membership in a union.

Soo Hospital Will Be Vacated For Use Of Army By June 30

SAULT STE. MARIE Mich. — (AP)—Evacuation of the Sault Ste Marie State Hospital will be completed by June 30, officials said today, as a third bus load of patients was transferred to the Pontiac State Hospital.

The Army has announced it will take over the hospital in August for 900 anti-aircraft troops being sent here to protect the Soo locks.

Hospital Superintendent T. W Thompson said it is planned to transfer a busload weekly until the 426 remaining patients are evacuated. There were 517 patients in the mental institution here in December.

Other patients previously were sent to Pontiac Jan. 27 and Feb. 7.

As the patient load is reduced. Thompson said there would be a corresponding reduction in employes. There are now 152 employes against 160 in December.

Menace Of H-Bomb May Become Issue In British Election

By WILLIAM S. OATIS

LONDON—(AP)— The hydrogen bomb began today to look like an issue in the British political campaign, which has brought out a record 1,866 candidates for Parliament.

Speakers for both Prime Minister Clement Attlee's Labor government and Winston Churchill's Conservative opposition have called for a new attempt at international agreement to head off the use of the fearful atomic weapon.

With the election only nine days off, the bomb still is not in the issue category. But if it should become so, debate probably would boil up over which party could do more to get the United States and Russia to agree —the Laborites or the Tories.

Neither Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin nor Tory Leader Churchill, both of them outspoken critics of the Soviet Union, have yet mentioned the bomb.

Both are speaking today. Bevin talks at Abbey Wood in southeast London and Churchill speaks at Edinburgh. Attlee is to speak at York and later at Doncaster and Sheffield. He is within two days of the end of his 1,000 mile speaking tour.

The hydrogen bomb drew attention from topliners yesterday for the first time since President Truman ordered U. S. scientists to make it.

Without mentioning the H-bomb by name, Anthony Eden, who is likely to become deputy prime minister if the Conservatives win, spoke fearfully at Radford of the "race in new weapons of destruction."

He said something must be done to stop this by ending international distrust.

"I am quite sure" Eden declared, "that we must make an attempt and make it soon."

Nominations for the Feb. 23 national elections closed last night. The 1,866 candidates who have entered the race will vie for 625 seats in the House of Commons.

Only two candidates are unopposed—Sir Hugh O'Neill and Capt. J. R. E. Harden, both of northern Ireland and both pro-Tory Ulster Unionists.

Never before have so many sought seats. The old record was 1,722 for 615 seats in 1929. In the 1945 election, when Attlee defeated Churchill's wartime government, 1,679 were nominated for 640 seats.

Meeting Of Delta School Boards To Be Held On Friday

A meeting of Delta school board members will be held at 8 p. m. Friday in Escanaba township hall, where the business session will be followed by a discussion of sex education in the public schools.

Hagle Quarnstrom, county school superintendent, said a moving picture film "Human Growth" will be presented, followed by a discussion led by Dr. William C. Harrison, director of the Delta-Menominee health district.

The film was presented last night at a meeting of the Rapid River PTA and was favorably received by the parents, Supt. Quarnstrom reported.

Announce Training Sessions For Delta School Bus Drivers

About 35 drivers of school buses in Delta county will attend training sessions to be held in several county communities this month, it was announced today by Hagle Quarnstrom, Delta county school superintendent.

The school for bus drivers will be conducted under the auspices of Northern Michigan College of Education, in conjunction with the Michigan Department of Public Instruction. Lee Duer, Marquette, employed by Northern Michigan College of Education, will be the instructor.

Bus drivers of the Bark River area will attend classes at Bark River on Feb. 20 and 21; for those of Cornell, Escanaba and Wells township, classes will be held at Wells Central school Feb. 22 and 23; and a third meeting of bus drivers for the Perkins district will be held starting Feb. 24 at Perkins.

Later a training session will be held for drivers of districts including Garden, Fairbanks, and Nahma. It has yet to be scheduled.

"Rented the first day" said Smith.
